Many Deer—No Wolves
A Little Politics
Can't Worry Wall Street
Rich, and Getting Richer

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928)

FARMERS in Pennsylvania complain of wild deer eating their crops. Twenty years ago there were only a thousand deer in the state, now there are a million.

There are no wolves in Pennsylvania. Deer help, and warn each other. Wolves don't help each other. Read Kropotkine's "Mutual Aid, a Factor in Evolution."

GOV. SMITH, who understands politics, and Mr. Raskob, master of finance and organization, talked in New York for an hour yesterday about campaign policies.

Herbert Hoover is on his way East to the Capital, perfectly satisfied, his friends say, with conditions in the farm belt. Republicans believe that what they call "Gov. Smith's indefiniteness" on the farm question will keep farmers in the Republican ranks.

NEWSPAPERS of Texas comment bitterly on Gov. Smith's prohibition statement. The suggestion that state governments should "go into the liquor business" seems particularly offensive.

August Heckscher, of New York, on the other hand, public spirited citizen, lifelong Republican, with many millions of dollars, will vote for Smith. He likes his prohibition ideas.

WALL STREET gentlemen, neither toiling nor spinning, but watching the ticker intently, are free from worry in this campaign.

They sent stocks booming again yesterday, bought and sold 3,000,000 shares in the first four hours, nearly 4,000,000 shares altogether.

It was a sad day for Bears. But then almost any day is sad for those foolish enough to go short in this country.

THOSE who realize that the dollar now is worth 60 cents compared with 1914, while our properties are worth a great deal more than they were then in real dollars, know that the prosperity boom is just starting.

Selling stocks isn't the only cheerful business. Industrial production and consumption are establishing new high records in many industries, according to the Department of Commerce. The first half of 1927 established a new high record. The first half of 1928 beats it.

Steel, electric, automobile and other industries are booming, retail sales expanding, and savings increasing. You can't complain of that picture.

As a nation we are richer than ever, and getting richer all the time.

IN JAPAN, as regards religion, you may be anything you like, Shintoist, Buddhist, Confucian, Christian—of any brand—but you must not meddle with the Mikado.

Aijiro Onisni, "head of the family of living gods and goddesses," is locked up with 178 followers. Descending from the gods, they say they ought to rule the country. Wise Japan; interfering only when necessary.

LADDIE SHARP, English girl, only 17, swam the Channel yesterday in 15 hours 5 minutes.

A wonderful achievement, although she didn't win $5,000 offered to any woman breaking Gertrude Ederle's record, 14 hours 31 minutes.

Being double-jointed, Miss Laddie can use the "double scissors kick stroke," and does 25 strokes per minute.

Such wonderful energy should be devoted to something more important than swimming the Channel.

THE airplane entered high finance yesterday with news that Lindbergh was flying from California to Chicago with John J. Mitchell, Jr., as passenger.

The Illinois Merchants' Trust Company and Continental National Bank and Trust Company plan a billion dollar merger. The flight was part of the deal.

It is pleasing to realize that Lindbergh piloting the ship interests Americans even more than "a billion dollars."

SOME things you can do, some things you can't. Kemal Pasha, boss of Turkey, tells Turks to wear real hats instead of a fez. They do it.

He offers his will in place of direct orders from Mohammed and Allah as expressed in the Koran. The Turks stand that.

Now he abolishes Turkish characters, replacing with our A B C's the picturesque Arabic script. The Turks stand that.

But even yet, they haven't given up alcoholic drink entirely, although Mohammed ordered it 1,300 years ago. The rich drink what they please. The poor can't get it.

Let's hope it won't take us 1,300 years to settle down, one way or the other in this country.

JOHN COOLIDGE, son of the President, evidently thinks his father's idea of vacation no vacation at all. It bores him to "eat, walk, read, sleep."

Yet those are about the only things that anybody can do, after early youth, as young Coolidge will learn with MORE boredom, later.

M'NAUGHER BELIEVED SURE TO WIN

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 25.—During the final business session today, unless all signs fail, W. H. McNaugher, of Pittsburgh, will be proclaimed department commander of the American Legion. The former captain has the inside track at the Legion state convention and is reliably reported to have sufficient pledged votes to win over Charles A. Gebhart, of Tamaqua, and Ray E. Taylor, of Harrisburg.

Mrs. Frank B. Emery, of Williamsport, was elected president of the Women's Auxiliary by a large margin over Mrs. J. F. Reed, of Harrisburg. The votes were cast yesterday and the result announced this morning at the opening of the business session.

In the Forty and Eight parade last night Blair County Voiture No. 350 won a cup for the best box car, Johnstown Voiture No. 294 was declared to have the best bugle corps, and York Voiture No. 9 had the largest number in smocks.

Uniontown was thronged for the Legion parade this afternoon. Special trains brought numerous participants and spectators. The crowd was conservatively estimated at 30,000.

Unless the unexpected happens Conneaut Lake today will be voted the convention place for next year.

RE-ENACT DEATH AT MURDER SCENE

The murder of Dr. Harry R. Dapper by a stranger in the physician's car at a lonely spot in Mifflin township Monday night was re-enacted at the scene today under the direction of Harry A. Dapper, the victim's father.

Previously Dapper was put through a searching inquisition by Acting District Attorney Roy Clunk and county detectives in Clunk's office. The father gave what was termed substantially the same account of the murder that he narrated when he first reported the crime. Alleged discrepancies said to have been noted in his subsequent recitals were attributed to "misquotation."

The examination of Dapper was conducted by Clunk, but questions also were interposed by Assistant District Attorney Charles Jarrett, Acting Chief of County Detectives Harry Cochran and Detectives Patrick Trainor, James Reddington, Frank Ritz, David Carlin and Robert McMillen.

Stenographer John Weible recorded Dapper's statements, and after the notes have been transcribed Dapper will make affidavit that his statement is "the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth."

SAY STATEMENTS O. K.

Clunk and Jarrett said they were convinced that an injustice had been done Dapper in reports that he had given varying versions of the crime.

15 Killed in N. Y. Subway

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Fifteen persons were killed and 156 injured, 47 seriously, in a disastrous subway wreck at Times Square late yesterday, a check-up of hospitals and the morgue revealed today. In the Transit Commission's original report, 17 were reported dead. It was feared that the death list would be increased during the day.

Normal service on the West Side line was restored this morning after more than 500 men, working all night, removed the debris of Manhattan's most frightful subway wreck from the tunnel. The debris loaded on flat cars included a few severed fingers, personal effects of the victims and chunks of the heavy concrete supporting wall which was broken in two at 5:09 o'clock when struck by the ninth car of a southbound 10-car Brooklyn express.

PROBERS IN CLASH

Meanwhile three investigations into the wreck were begun. One was conducted by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company among its employes, another by Mayor James J. Walker and a special committee and a third by the Transit Commission. The investigations were hampered by clashes between Mayor Walker and the police on one hand, and Interborough officials on the other. Police charged that the Interborough officials refused to produce employes needed as witnesses and Mayor Walker ordered that Frank Hedley, president of the company, be arrested. This order was revoked, however, when Hedley promised to produce the employes wanted.

Police Commissioner Warren charged today that subway employes at the Times Square station knew that the damaged switch, which caused the wreck, was de-

SMITH 69 AHEAD IN PENNA,

Gov. Alfred E. Smith's lead over Herbert Hoover in Pennsylvania in the straw vote canvass conducted by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph gradually is diminishing. The vote today stands: Smith, 2,279; Hoover, 2,190; a Smith lead of 69.

This is accounted for by the large number of ballots returned by registered voters in the rural districts, where it has been shown that the Republican presidential candidate has his principal strength. These districts include townships in Allegheny county and the country sections of the up-state counties.

Within the last few days, however, thousands of return postal card ballots have been mailed to voters in Philadelphia county and other populous centers and industrial districts where Smith sentiment has been shown, and it would not be surprising if the Smith lead shows a marked increase when these ballots are returned, probably early next week.

The poll in Pennsylvania is being conducted in connection with the nation-wide canvass made by all Hearst newspapers in an effort to determine by straw votes the drift of sentiment in the November election.

Connellsville Undaunted by Reverses

"Toujours de l'audace," Always to dare. Danton's motto might well be inscribed on Connellsville's coat of arms. Undismayed by disasters that would have quenched the ambition of many a community, the Fayette county city, with characteristic courage, has initiated new enterprises which have brought new prosperity. Still greater things are in store, for the city is to gain a new trunk line with the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad extension, which will tap undeveloped coal fields of the Freeport vein.

Connellsville's 14,000 bee-hive coke ovens have been virtually put out of business by the by-product coking plants at Pittsburgh, Youngstown and Cleveland. The destruction by fire of the Baltimore and Ohio machine shops last February was another blow. But the city has acquired other industries. The young men who manage one of them, a factory whose products are probably to be found on your pantry shelves, have just scrapped $100,000 worth of equipment, installed less than a year ago, because they have found something better. That is the Connellsville spirit! And it is bringing its reward.

There will be a page of news and pictures of Connellsville in The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph tomorrow.

VETERANS OF ALL WARS IN PICNIC REUNION TODAY

Defenders of the nation for the last 70 years, today are swapping yarns and holding a general jollification at the reunion of American veterans at Kennywood Park.

From the gray-haired boys in blue down the line to the leatherneck in khaki, veterans of all the wars, are the guests of The Sun-Telegraph. They came from all sections of the Pittsburgh district and made a happy throng.

Disabled veterans now in Pittsburgh hospitals, and the aged and infirm of the Civil War were taken to the park in automobiles.

The uniform, a service button or a discharge paper was sufficient credential to gain admission to the park and its myriad of attractions.

First aid stations were maintained by the American Red Cross, and the Salvation Army lassies handed out doughnuts and coffee in celebration of the big windup 10 years ago.

PIRATES HAVE FLAG CHANCE

By LES CONKLIN,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Four clubs—the Giants, the Cubs, the Reds and the Pirates—are so close to the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals that any one of them may be in first place a week from today. The Cards increased their lead over New York to a game and a half by beating the Phillies yesterday, and the Cubs grabbed third place by taking two games from Boston while the Reds were idle.

The Yankees, leading the Athletics by only three games today, find themselves in a more precarious position than at any time since springtime. The A's, who slumped a bit following their triumphant invasion of the West, have just won four straight from Cleveland.

Yesterday the Yanks were twotimed by the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 2 and 3 to 1. Crowder and Blaeholder outpitched Pipgras and Heimach. The Browns, who didn't beat the Yanks last year almost until the end of the season, have broken even with the champions in 18 contests this year.

Cochrane's single staked Rube Walberg of the Athletics to a 1-to-0 victory over Joe Shaute of the Indians.

Ernie Orsatti's homer, his third in six games, accounted for the only score as Jess Haines of St. Louis blanked the Phillies, 1 to 0. But the Cards haven't made more than two runs a game since the Boston series and face tough going against the other western teams next week while the Giants take on the weaker eastern clubs.

The Pirates plastered the Giants again, 16 to 5. Burleigh Grimes turned in his fifth straight win against his former mates and his twenty-second victory of the season. The Bucs nicked five New York pitchers for 19 hits.

Good pitching by Malone and Root enabled the Cubs to grab both ends

RUM BY GALLON FOR BYRD

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Hasty efforts to assemble 2,000 gallons of pure grain alcohol and several hundred gallons of choice liquors, including champagne, as part of the medicinal supplies of Commander Byrd's Antarctic expedition were being made today as the City of New York, base ship of the expedition, prepared to sail at noon.

The liquors were ordered by Dr. Francis Coman, of Johns Hopkins University, chief medical officer of the expedition. Commander Byrd was making frantic efforts to round up the liquors in time to load them on the City of New York and was being aided in his task by Prohibition Administrator Maurice Campbell.

The City of New York, loaded with 200 tons of supplies and carrying 31 members of the expedition, was scheduled to sail at noon on the 9,200-mile trip to Dunedin, New Zealand. A reception will be held aboard the vessel before sailing and city officials and several of the backers of the exploration party will travel down the bay with the steamer. They will be returned on the city tug Macom when the New York strikes the open sea.

Forty Boy Scouts from Erie, Pa., were on hand to bid farewell to Paul Siple, Boy Scout chosen as a member of the party.

Bernt Balchen, one of the pilots, announced that the big three-motored Ford plane he brought from Detroit yesterday had responded to the tests satisfactorily. It, with three other planes, will be packed on the Chelsea, the second ship of the expedition, which will sail next month. The entire party will be assembled at New Zealand before the trip to the Antarctic.

GIRL'S BODY FOUND JAMMED IN CULVERT

Women Set Rapid Pace -:- For Presidential Campaign -:- In City and County

ENTER CAMPAIGN

There is every evidence that will be active in Alle- ty's presidential Mrs. Clarence Ren- instance, prominent Dem- will no doubt help to swell the Smith vote.

HOOVER FOLLOWER

If Herbert Hoover piles up a big majority, Mrs. A. H. G. Frazier will have been a factor. Vice chairman of the Republican County Committee, she has taken important parts in past political campaigns.

AN ORGANIZER

Mrs. A. H. Hull directed the organization of women Republicans in Allegheny last year. Will her efforts for the G. O. P. national ticket be as productive? She was the first woman to be elected county vice chairman.

AN ENIGMA?

And what part will Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence play? Prominent in local and state Republican politics, she supported Pinchot against the organization and later helped Col. McGovern be elected commissioner in an independent fight.

CITY DIRECTOR

The natural presumption is that Mrs. Enoch Rauh, being director of the city's Department of Public Welfare under a Republican administration, will throw her support to Hoover.

STRONG CAMPAIGNER

Mrs. Carroll Miller is safely in the Smith camp. She seconded his nomination at the Houston convention and four years previous in New York. She'll campaign actively for the Democratic candidate.

KNOWS POLITICS

Influential in state and national Republican politics, Mrs. William B. Schiller is expected to lend a hand to the Hoover campaign in Pennsylvania. She is not, by any means, unlearned in politics.

AX MURDER REVEALED BY DOG

ELKHORN, Wis., Aug. 25.—(AP.)—A dog's inquisitiveness which led him prowling into a culvert on the Williams Bay road yesterday, has added another "roadside murder" mystery to Wisconsin's crime list.

Wrapped in a blanket and jammed into the culvert was the body of a young woman. It was clad only in a cotton undergarment. Because of the condition of the body identification appeared impossible. Dr. E. T. Ridgeway, county physician, said the woman had been dead six weeks, perhaps longer.

There was no question in the physician's mind as to the cause of death. The woman had been murdered. Four ribs on the right side had been crushed, as though by an axe. The bones had pierced the lungs.

A state patrolman, curious to see what the dog had found, discovered the body. Burial was made as soon as the coroner had made an investigation, but the body was to be exhumed today in the hope that relatives of missing girls might identify it by means of the white, even teeth and the coarse black hair, about 11 inches long.

It was considered unlikely that the victim resided in this part of the state, for no girls or young women have been reported missing. Numerous resorts are scattered hereabout, however, and the woman may have been a guest at one of them. Several circumstances convinced the officers that the slaying did not take place at or near the spot where the body was found.

WHAT, WHAT, SAYS BRITON N.Y.MEN DRINKING MILK?

MONTREAL, Aug. 25.—(AP.)—Percy F. Crokhill, secretary to the lord mayor of Liverpool, regards New York as a city "flowing with milk and honey." Everywhere he went in the big city, he says, much to his surprise, he saw men sitting down before glasses and drinking—drinking milk.

LADY NANCY ASTOR GOING HOME TO DANCE

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 25.—(AP.)—Lady Nancy Astor is to be carried back to Ol' Virginny by some good ship and train in the fall. She has accepted an invitation to attend the Governor's ball October 5.

W. H. M'NAUGHER SLATED FOR LEGION CHIEF TODAY

Scranton, the general favorite for a week or two, withdrew and Conneaut Lake is promised the backing of Pittsburgh, Sharon and New Castle persons.

A committee recommended that Gov. Fisher's request for the convention to be held at Harrisburg in 1930 be granted. The Governor's message stated that the dedication of the new State Street Bridge had been set for August, 1930, and it would be most appropriate to have the Legion convention at that time.

In a spirited contest yesterday, Lucius McK. Crumrine, of Washington, defeated Commander Hollenback, of Philadelphia, by two votes for state commander. After Hollenback had lost, 322-320, he made a succesful motion that Crumrine's election be declared unanimous.

The Rev. Charles F. Gorman, of Philadelphia, was elected chaplain, 586 to 145, over the Rev. Henry J. Taxdal, of Nanticoke.

Daniel B. Strickler, of Lancaster, was elected alternate district committeeman over Dr. Edward Williams of Huntingdon.

Roy B. Sheetz of Mt. Joy had a runaway race against Harry L. Sutton of East Stroudsburg in the election for eastern vice commander. For central vice commander, Harvey R. Bowman of Williamsport defeated Michael Onze of Olyphant. For western vice commander, Dr. R. B. McCord, of Northeast, won over Duncan C. McCallum, of Leechburg.

Commander Hollenback awarded cups for membership increases to Commander Walter Grist, of Meyersdale; Past Commander H. L. Faust, Homewood; Commander William C. Williams, of Wilkes-Barre; Commander David Vaughan, Nanticoke; Henry H. Houston, Philadelphia; Commander Charles Engard; Commander Howard F. Taylor, Roy W. Gibson, Oxford.

The Henry R. Houston (Erie) Post plaque was presented to Commander J. S. Julianti, of Rogers Israel Post No. 11 of Erie, who in turn presented it to David Simpson, of the Erie Post's membership committee. Simpson obtained 403 members in the drive for 1,389 members, which won the contest.

District commanders' charms were presented to 13 commanders, whose districts went "over the top" in membership. They were: Sixth, Frank Kanter; seventh, Charles Engard; eleventh, Michael Onze; twelfth, Louis Edwards; seventeenth, Joseph P. Fox; twenty-fourth, Carl C. Tinstman; twenty-fifth, Guy Woodward; twenty-eighth, C. A. Kramer; twenty-ninth, Dr. R. B. McCord; thirty-third, John J. Diller; thirty-second, Charles Lane; thirty, Harry L. Sutton; thirty-fifth, George A. Grimm.

Dr. McCord was also presented a membership flag for the increase in his district, the twenty-ninth.

MRS. EMORY WINS

Mrs. Frank B. Emery, of Williamsport, today was elected president of the Women's Auxiliary of the Pennsylvania Legion. She defeated Mrs. J. F. Reed, of Harrisburg, by a big majority.

TWO-MILLION FOOT GAS WELL IS STRUCK

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 25.—A 2,000,000-foot gas strike was reported yesterday in the Big Injun sand on the Rosenfield tract, just east of Beallsville.

DAPPER KILLING SUSPECT FREED ON PROVING ALIBI

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 25.—Satisfied that he had not been connected with the slaying of Dr. Harry R. Dapper, Pittsburgh physician, state police last night release M. P. Walker, 37, whom they had taken into custody here for questioning.

Walker told Sergt. William Jones of the state police that he was in Chicago, Monday night, when the murder was committed. He said he left his home in Stanton, N. D., last week, and came to Washington to seek employment as a school teacher.

FIND PISTOL SHELL

Walker was taken into custody yesterday after his actions had excited suspicion, according to police. After arriving here he stayed in his room Tuesday and Wednesday, they said. When he left it yesterday morning, police searched his effects and, they said, found an exploded pistol shell in his trunk.

These facts, together with the coincidence that Walker's appearance tallied somewhat with the description of Dr. Dapper's slayer, they declared, led to his being questioned.

Walker told police he had once taught schol at Elderville, Washington county, and then had gone to North Dakota. When he decided to return east, he selected Washington as a likely place to find employment.

He arrived in Pittsburgh Tuesday morning and filed application at a Pittsburgh school employment agency, Walker said. Police verified this.

He rented a room in East Wheeling street, and remained there Tuesday and Wednesday because the long trip from the West had tired him, he explained. The exploded pistol shell was a souvenir, picked up in a western camp, he declared.

After a checkup, Sergt. William Jones and Private Benjamin Moran decided that Walker's alibi was true, and he was freed.

SCENES IN DAPPER MURDER RE-ENACTED

There was nothing inconsistent in his statements, they declared.

Before Dapper arrived at the District Attorney's office, Samuel J. Grenet, North Side political leader, a friend and business associate, called on Chief of Detectives Cochran to request that the examination be conducted in a courteous manner.

The formal inquisition ended, Dapper, the district attorneys and the detectives went in automobiles to the scene of the crime, where every move made by the three participants in the tragedy was re-enacted u per's direction.

OFFER UES

Revie per's statement, the county s said they could find not that was previously unkn hem, nothing that could be new lead.

Dappe theory as to the motive crime. He knew nothing oken glass in the car. He conversation with the mur would be unable to recog he said.

To mo questions he returned e answer.

Asked i ver been engaged in the bo business, he replied indi at he had never had any connection with any kind of unlawful "racket."

The detectives said they were just where they were when they started the investigation.

A new angle in the case, on which Dapper was questioned, developed with the discovery that the "empty" revolver which he took with him when he accompanied his son, had been fired recently.

Detectives express themselves as completely baffled by the mysterious chain of circumstances surrounding the case. Dr. Dapper is known to have left his office some time after 9 p. m. with the stranger who asked him to accompany him to the bedside of his "dying wife." At a gasoline station in Brownsville road where Dr. Dapper stopped to fill his tank, the attendant and a fellow-worker say they are positive it was 9:45 when the physician drove up with the stranger in the machine.

TIME SHORT

The elder Dapper startled residents in the vicinity of Lebanon Church with his disheveled appearance and the announcement that his son had been shot a short time after 10 p. m. According to this, detectives point out, it would be necessary to drive at an unusually high rate of speed to reach the scene of the murder and the father insists that nothing out of the ordinary occurred en route.

Reddington also points out that the father persists in the story that he and his son remained quiet during the ride to Mifflin township. The stranger made one or two inconsequential remarks, the father says, but other than these, nothing was said during the long ride of 12 or 14 miles. This is most unusual and hardly to be expected, according to Reddington.

ASK GARAGES TO HELP

County Detectives Reddington and Trainor today requested that every owner of a garage, public or private, shed or barn in which an automobile might be stored, look into the building on the chance that the murderer has concealed the car in it.

The detectives are convinced that the car is not being driven in the vicinity of Pittsburgh. The hue and cry that has been raised has been so vehement that they are satisfied that if the car were anywhere on the roads in this section it would have been seen and reported.

They have established that Dr. Dapper filled the tank of the machine with gasoline at the Gulf Refining Company's filling station at 2135 Brownsville road when he set out on the fatal ride. The murderer had enough fuel to carry him a hundred miles or more before it would have been necessary for him to refuel.

of a double-header from the Braves, 4 to 1 and 4 to 3.

The Tigers got a dose of their own medicine when they were nosed out by the Red Sox, 2 to 1, after having taken four straight from the Sox by a one-run margin. Ruffing and Stoner did the throwing.

GIANTS SAY FAREWELL

The Giants will say farewell to Pittsburgh today, but they won't say it with flowers if Monsieur Remy Kremer and his Pirate mates attain their goal.

Remy and his pals are all pepped up to make it three out of four from the leaders that were; if the Oaklanders can cop they will feel right smart about everything, as they head for Cincinnati, where they are scheduled for games tomorrow and Monday.

The Pirates are still five and one-half games from the league-leading Cardinals, but they are only four games behind the Giants. The fifth-place Buccos are having a tough time getting into the first division, but let them edge in there once and there is no telling how far they will go.

Manager McGraw will put it up to Fred Fitzsimmons to check the fast-going Buccos. Fitz is about the only regular McGraw has available, so his appearance is a case of necessity.

SUBWAY CRASH KILLS 15

fective. The train was held at the station for five minutes while repairmen worked at the switch, he said. When asked why the train was allowed to proceed at its regular speed over the defective switch, Interborough officials said they would make no statement until the company's official inquiry was completed.

The damaged switch was split by the ninth car of the train, which had just pulled out of the station. The steel side of the car was ground off when it crashed against the platform and heavy pillars supporting the street above, and ripped through the concrete supporting wall.

FIRE IN TUNNEL

The screaming passengers of the eighth car, packed in like sardines, were thrown onto the tracks. Fire, caused by short circuiting and burning insulation, turned the tunnel into a shambles.

Into this inferno were catapulted the terror-stricken occupants of the eighth car, which tore loose from the train and toppled over near the burning wreckage of the ninth. The falling passengers clutched at available supports in the car but were swept relentlessly into the flaming wreckage by the oncoming human wave behind them. Heaps of glass and jagged chunks of steel tore at the flesh of those fortunate enough to escape the searing flames. Subway employes at the station cut off the power in the third rail, saving countless others from death.

The forward half of the severed ninth car skidded down the tracks like a headless horseman and collapsed. The rear end of the car was telescoped by the tenth and last car.

PANIC ON SURFACE

The screams of the victims, reverberating through the tunnel like the death agonies of wild beasts, were borne to the ears of thousands of home-goers who crowded the platform of the Times Square station. Terrified by the shrill cries of the dying, by the flashes of electrical fire and by the smudgy smoke which filled the tunnel, the rush-hour crowd became panic stricken and fought to reach the exits.

A detective pulled police and fire alarms and recruited scores of patrolmen, who cleared the platforms and began rescue work. Dozens of ambulances from 14 hospitals arrived and carried away the bodies of mangled victims.

SCOUTS PITCH CAMP -:- ON MT. WASHINGTON -:- FOR FIELD DAY

HEADQUARTERS TROOP

Members of Headquarters Troop were among the first to get their tent up at the eighth annual three-day troop jamboree in Bigham's woods, Mt. Washington. Several hundred scouts participated.

ARMY STYLE

Members of Troop 38 had a little street of tents all their own. The scouts participate in a swimming meet in Olympia Park, as well as a parade and a pageant take place today. Tonight they will be present when executives hold a court of honor.

HARD AT WORK

It was difficult work for members of Troop 27 to get things started. It was rough ground which was assigned them but they were regular campers and finally put things right. Tomorrow the scouts will attend church. The jamboree ends one of the most active summers in Scout history here.

MAN'S JOB

Scout leaders were called in to put up the large flagpole in the center of camp. The Scouts had quite a patriotic flag raising.

EVERBODY'S HUNGRY

Mess call sounded by Bugler Bill McClelland brought almost a stampede for the eats. The boys had worked hard pitching camp and their desire for food seemed pretty strong.

Political Leaders Puzzled -:- By Vare-Wilson Hearing -:- Involves McGovern's Audit

POLITICAL PUZZLE

City and county Republican leaders are in a quandary? Is, they ask, the Senate sub-committee which comes here Monday for the Vare-Wilson hearing, to probe that election or revive Charles C. McGovern's late audit of county business?

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

Subpenas served on some request records of McGovern's prying audit but none asks for records of the election in which William S. Vare defeated William B. Wilson, Democrat, for the Senate.

THE WITNESSES

Among those subpenaed are County Commissioners Babcock, Armstrong and McGovern himself, lately controller, Council President James Malone, County Treasurer John Francies and James A. Routley, clerk to the commissioners.

WILL HE BE HERE?

Little did Mr. Vare suspect when, with his daughter Bertha, he voted in Philadelphia (above) for himself that more than a year later he would still be outside of the Senate. Stricken recently in Atlantic City, there is some doubt whether the Philadelphia political boss will be physically able to attend the hearings.

BRING THE RECORDS!

Others subpenaed include Mayor Kline, Recorder of Deeds Samuel Foster, who has been instructed to produce records of twice-paid tax receipts for 1926, and Controller Robert G. Woodside.

A REVIVAL?

Woodside has been requested to bring the controller's 1926 report and all testimony taken in McGovern's audit. These records are expected to play an important part in the developments.

THAT VARE MAJORITY

Routley, in charge of the routine in the commissioners' office, is expected to tell of the tabulation of the Allegheny county vote as he received it. Allegheny, you remember, gave Vare a majority.

NEW FAVORS PGH.-EAST AIR MAIL ROUTE

Final decision on the proposed airmail route between Pittsburgh, Baltimore and Washington cannot be given by postal officials until after a complete survey of the route is made, Postmaster General Harry S. New said yesterday after representatives of the three cities made formal request for the new route.

If the survey shows what its supporters believe it will, New is expected to take favorable action toward immediate establishment of the route, as he looked kindly toward the project when interviewed yesterday. Armed with more than 2,000 signatures of persons who would like to see the route started, Col. Harry C. Fry, Jr., was present at a conference with the postal head yesterday, representing Pittsburgh.

READY TO BID

At least three companies, and probably five, are known to be preparing to bid for the airmail contract. Included in these are Clifford Ball, of Bettis Field, and two new Pittsburgh aviation firms. A company in Youngstown and another in Baltimore also are in the field for the contract. Ball, who now holds the contract between Pittsburgh and Cleveland, will make a survey of the proposed route, independent of the survey planned by the Postoffice Department.

SWERVES AUTO TO SAVE BOY, BUT KILLS HIM

Pinned against a stone wall by an automobile, which was struck, police say, by another car, George Carson, 3, of 8 Douglass station, Elizabeth township, was killed instantly yesterday. John Higby, of Douglass station, the driver, was ordered to appear at the coroner's office.

Higby, driving his automobile in a road near the tot's home, observed a boy playing in the street. Swerving his car to avoid striking the child, he crashed into a parked automobile, which was moved by the impact and pinned the victim against the wall.

SEVEN HURT IN CRASH

Seven persons, members of two families, were injured, one probably fatally, when a sedan of James Crawford, 45, of 7020 Mt. Vernon street, struck a tree and then broke off a fire plug at the Stanton avenue entrance to Highland Park late last night. The injured were taken to the Pittsburgh Hospital.

The victims are: Mrs. Margaret Crawford, 44; her two children, William, 12, and Jane, 3, and Fred Benzenhoefer, 30; his wife, Mrs. Anna Benzenhoefer, 28, and their 5-month-old daughter, Doris. Mrs. Crawford's skull and ribs were fractured. Crawford, the driver, suffered several fractured ribs.

The Benzenhoefers, who live at the same address, suffered cuts and bruises. Mrs. Benzenhoefer and her daughter, after receiving treatment at the hospital, were able to go to their home. Crawford's machine is said to have skidded. A reckless driving charge was lodged against him.

SKIDDING CARS DAMAGED

A heavy rain and a newly oiled road resulted in more than a score of automobiles being damaged, some badly, last night when they passed over the slippery stretch of the William Penn highway near Woodlawn Cemetery, Wilkinsburg.

PARIS-N. Y. AIRMEN CRASH AT HOP-OFF

LE BOURGET, France, Aug. 25.—(AP.)—An attempt to span the Atlantic by air from East to West failed this morning when the monoplane France returned to the flying field here at 7:20 o'clock, shortly after having taken off on what was hoped would be a nonstop flight to New York.

In taking off, the plane narrowly missed colliding with high tension electric wires skirting the field and it was due to dexterous handling by Capt. Louis Courdouret, the pilot, that the machine was saved from destruction and its three occupants from death.

COUNT AMONG CREW

The crew consisted of Courdouret, Count Louis de Mailly-Nesle, relief pilot, and Capt. Mailleux, navigator. The attempt to lift their machine, loaded with 1,220 gallons of gasoline, was made more difficult by an unfavorable wind.

So little altitude had been gained at the end of the takeoff stretch that the landing gear struck a board fence bounding the field, smashing one of the wheels. The next moment death stared the fliers in the face for, after clearing the fence, they found they could not ascend rapidly enough to pass over the electric wires strung a short distance outside.

Taking the only alternative, Courdouret ducked under the wires in a long swoop in which the machine grazed the ground.

Just beyond these wires were a number of telephone wires, over which Courdouret soared, carrying away two or three of the wires but getting clear.

The pilot, still unable to attain altitude, was obliged to zigzag among trees and narrowly missed the housetops of the village of Gonesse. Then Capt. Mailleux saved the day by opening the emergency safety cock and emptying the extra gasoline tanks. This caused the plane to shoot upward and gave Courdouret opportunity to maneuver back to the field. Gasoline still was streaming from the tanks when the plane landed with a bump, bursting the tire on the undamaged wheel.

The aviators were not injured. Courdouret, after declaring himself happy to be on the ground again and remarking that he considered their escape a miraculous one, said he would try the flight again as soon as the plane can be repaired.

LITA GETS FINAL DIVORCE DECREE FROM CHAPLIN

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—The legal parting of the ways for Lita Grey Chaplin and Charles Spencer Chaplin was consummated here yesterday when the actress' attorneys signed the final decree of her divorce from the film comedian. This decree was signed just a year and a day after the actress-wife obtained interlocutory papers.

Mrs. Chaplin did not move for her final decree Thursday when the legal year was ended, on advice of the court. It was pointed out that the exact time intervening between an interlocutory and a final decree, whether a year or a year and a day, never had been definitely established through a high court decision in California.

Mrs. Chaplin, who formerly was the comedian's leading lady in pictures, made many and varied charges against the film funster in her divorce complaint. Though a battle of "statements" was waged in which the comedian denied charges of indiscretions and cruelty, Chaplin did not contest her action. She was awarded a decree and in the neighborhood of half a million dollars.

RICHARD R. QUAY COMES OUT FOR SMITH

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—Democratic campaign managers are making much of a telegram received by Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, from Richard R. Quay, of Pittsburgh, son of the late Mathew S. Quay, for years the most powerful Republican leader in Pennsylvania, pledging his support to the Democratic presidential nominee.

Mr. Quay's pledge of support, made public by branch headquarters of the Democratic national committee here, was contained in a message to the New York Governor congratulating him on his speech of acceptance delivered at Albany this week.

"I desire to offer you my hearty congratulations on your able and statesmanlike address," the message read. "A human declaration with honesty, high courage and red blood in every line, it was, coupled with your prenomination statement, the most refreshing for its bravery and happy candor ever issued by a candidate for high office. It should appeal to every thinking American. You have my hearty support and best wishes for the success I am sure will be yours in November."

The statement from Democratic headquarters commenting on the Quay message, declared that "an interesting coincidence is noted in the fact that while the son of Quay is actively supporting Smith in Pennsylvania, Spencer Penrose, brother of the late Boies Penrose, Quay's political successor, is leading a great fight in Colorado against the Republican prohibition policy."

URGE LOCAL ARCHITECTS FOR HALL

A resolution asking for the appointment of a committee of three local architects to advise the county commissioners in the design of the $6,000,000 town hall authorized in the recent county bond issue, was presented at a meeting of the commissioners yesterday by Commissioner Charles C. McGovern. McGovern said that in the past the county has surrendered more architectural work to out of town interests than any other municipality in the district.

Local architects have designed the city and county schools which are the best in the country and McGovern believes that local men should supervise the work. Each of the three commissioners would be given the right to select a member of the committee.

BRITISH WOMAN MAYOR NOW LAUDS YANKEE MEN

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 25.—(AP.)—His worship, Mrs. Lucia Marion Foster-Welch, mayor of Southampton, England, and admiral of that port, visited Philadelphia yesterday, inspected the port, delivered a bit of philosophy, offered measures of praise and left behind her some political advice. "His" worship is the correct British formula in addressing the woman mayor.

She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Marion Paton, and Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Petrey, representing the United States lines on which she traveled. The party was greeted by officials of the city.

"Your American girls are simply wonderful," she said, as she declared in Washington yesterday. But she added: "I know of only one thing so splendid—your American men. I've lost my heart to all your men, and my daughter she thinks there are none like them."

On politics, Mrs. Foster-Welch had this to say:

"I believe that politics should enter into municipal government scarcely at all. Here government should be for all of the people, without favors to the side which happens to bevictorious. I believe that the political aspect, however, influences your American city government more than it does in England."

Widely Heralded "Godless Girl" Doesn't Excite Hollywood Fans During Opening Performance

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 25.

HOLLYWOOD was split into two armed camps last night at exactly the hour which marked the ending of "The Godless Girl" premiere. The faithful were very faithful indeed. But they were a small band, outnumbered many times by a host of Hollywood scoffers. It has been stated that Hollywood doesn't know a good picture from a bad one. If "The Godless Girl" wins acclaim elsewhere, the truth of this assertion will be proven.

Chief fault is found with the directorial treatment of the theme and with the story itself. And indeed it would seem that a fright-filled boy and girl would scarcely hesitate for Gish-like gambols, with the hounds, human and blood, baying at their heels. The entire picture is somewhat heavy with horrors depicting the atrocious treatment of reform school inmates at the hands of a chief-guard, subtitularly described as having as having "the strength of an ox, the brain of a sheep and the heart of a hyena."

The picture is distinguished by fine photography and unusual angles, which rebound to the credit of Cameraman Peverell Marley. A florid melodrama, it is decidedly gripping in its best moments and impresses such a casual student as myself as dripping with box-office a heavy burden of however, and as anating from the forces in the industry, it is an artistic disappointment. Perhaps, once again, the movies have erred in superabundant ballyhoo.

The verdict acquits the cast with honor. Most laurels must wreath the brow of Marie Prevost, a fine actress, an excellent technician, most happily cast. Next comes Eddie Quillan, whose comedy is doubly welcome as relief from abounding drabness. Lina Basquette routs all traducers by contributing a characterization marred only by the perpetration of silly sequences for which she is blameless. George Duryea depends much upon his emotions, and Noah Beery is a bit Beau Gestey.

Sue Carol will arrive in New York tomorrow morning and will have just four hours to greet Radie Harris and her other New York pals before sailing over the bounding, etc., main for Europe . . . and Nicky Stuart.

Another movie miracle. Emil Jannings will speak right out, via sound sequences, in "Sins of the Fathers." Just what quality of English Emil will use remains to be seen.

Rudolph Schildkraut, the papa of Joseph, and a very good actor, has been selected for a role in Janet Gaynor's picture, soon to be directed by William K. Howard. Oddly enough, Holland is the land which will form the background of the Gaynor film, and this country will be one of the locales for Greta Garbo's cinema, "Heat," written and rewritten by one of the authors of "Rain." So tulip-land, too, must produce good little girls and the kind Greta portrays in asbestos celluloid.

As you know, Clara gets the most fan mail in Hollywood. A recent check-up brings to light the interesting data that the cinema city spends some two millions of dollars annually in handling letters addressed to picture people. The aggregate mail of the players is more than 30,000,0000 letters each year. Strange to say, the motion picture industry is not the greatest in point of yield enjoyed by California. It is topped by the oil business. The oil fields with their rich flow of "blackgold" are as fascinatingly romantic as any aspect of the movies.

NEW DRAMAS MONDAY

"Craig's Wife," which the Nixon Players will present next week as their last play in the Nixon this season, is said to be a drama of intense and moving interest. It was written by George Kelly, author of "The Torch Bearers."

"Burlesque," which will open the Alvin season September 3, Labor Day, with a matinee, was written by George Manker Watters and Arthur Hopkins. The cast will be headed by Hal Skelly and Barbara Stanwyck.

The new Pitt attraction will be "It's a Boy," a comedy drama of small town life. Bradley Page and Olive Meehan will be featured.

Violet Elliott will present her "Dance of the Seven Veils" in the Academy production, "French Models," which opens with a midnight show tomorrow night.

The photoplay in the Stanley next week is based on the romantic life of Napoleon's brother, Jerome. Dolores Costello and Conrad Nagel are in the cast.

"Pow-Wow" is to open Monday on the Penn stage. The photoplay will be John Barrymore's "Tempest," which features Camilla Horn, German actress, as leading woman.

"White Pants Willie" will be the photoplay in the Harris and Sheridan Square Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Vaudeville acts also will be offered.

"Three Ring Marriage," a picture of circus life and co-featuring Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes, is coming to the Grand.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

THE Second Symphony of Brahms and compositions of Liszt, Tschaikowsky and Goldmark will feature the symphony concert in Lewisohn Stadium, to be broadcast over the NBC System, including WCAE, at 8:30 tonight. Under the direction of Willem van Hoogstraten, regular leaders of the summer symphonies, the program on that date will present the following works: Overture, Sakuntala, by Goldmark; Fantasie, Romeo and Juliet, by Tschaikowsky; Les Preludes, by Liszt; Symphony No. 2, by Brahms. It is distinguished by cheerfulness and it betokens a peaceful existence.

At 7 o'clock the Strollers will broadcast their second long play of this season. It is "The Gypsy Trail," by Robert Housum. It will be directed by Mae Sweeny. It is the story of a very romantic young woman whose suitor decides to kidnap her, because, he thinks, in order to win her, he must become a Lochinvar. The parts will be portrayed by Gregg Bridges, Claude Morris, Bernard MacAteer, Don Bridges, Winifred Meehan and Elizabeth Shoemaker.

"The Variable Condenser and Its Use in the Tuning Circuit" is the subject which James W. H. Weir, chairman of the Home Radio Club, will discuss at 7:30 over KDKA.

Beginning at 7:45 o'clock, Donald Bain, imitator and whistler, of Pittsburgh, will present American bird calls for the entertainment of KDKA's audience.

The Crowder brothers, Edward and Lewis, will present octa tarda and guitar selections from the Fort Pitt studio of KDKA at 6:05.

BUGS BAER Says

(Copyright, 1928.)

IF we can plaster any diluted faith in the present campaign the farmer is finally having his day in the sun.

But he had better not remove his sunbonnet.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

August is the month when the national politician leaps from stump to platform, and from rostrum to dias, telling the patient clover-kicker how he is going to relieve the suffering agriculturist.

And he does relieve the farmer. Of everything.

We will believe that the nimble orator is the friend of the weed-grabbers when he drops that gavel and picks up a rake.

The prosperity of all nations rests upon the mortgaged landscape. Everything springs from the soil except whiskers.

We admit that those speeches sound good over the radio. But try and plant them.

You can get a load of Congressional help and still have an empty wagon.

The only time a farmer is certain of a pa[illegible] is when he waddles out into the cornfield and shakes hands with his scarecrow.

In a way the present situation is the weed-benders' own fault. They spent the last 50 years working for blue ribbons at state fairs.

Naturally when a politician heard that a farmer could be paid off in purple ribbons he went right into the dry goods business.

And that prize pumpkin stuff didn't help any. Especially when the rural free citizens started electing their prize pumpkins to the Senate.

Of course the farmer has been helped a lot in the last few years. We have built a new wing on the Metropolitan Museum, bought three original Rembrandts, won the Antwerp Olympics and discovered lily cups.

He has tuned in on two acceptance speeches, has learned that the Woolworth is the tallest building in the world and is happ[illegible]rd is going to discover the South Pole.

Knowledge is power. You can make him forget tariff, an economical marketing system and cheaper transportation by allowing him to trim you one game of cribbage.

When the delegations of indignant hay-binders come East to protest to Washington, what do they do?

They forget what they arrived for and rush down to Atlantic City to see the gals in those one-piece bathing suits.

After the banks have clamped down on the farmer and he has lost his farm via the waiver route, his Congressman comes to his aid and helps him to start life all over again with a package of free pansy seeds.

So shed a tear for the poor old potato miner. He is knee deep in weeds and promises. He casts his vote once every four years but forgets to hang around and see if they count it.

TOOK ADVICE OF HER MOTHER

Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Wetmore, Colo.—"When I was married 14 years ago I was in bad health for a couple of years and when I tried to do anything I would get tired and worn-out. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound off and on all these years and have recommended it to hundreds of women. I have given birth to six children and have taken the Vegetable Compound as a tonic before child birth. It has done me worlds of good. My mother had taken it several times and she recommended it to me."—Mrs. John Brassea, Wetmore, Colorado.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE NEAR-DEBUTANTE

By EMILY BURTON

ON a high scaffold outside the Country Club house stood Lennox Rabb, painting.

Below, a group of golfers strolled across the green on their way to the club house. Lennox stopped his work for a moment to gaze at the girl, who seemed to be furnishing the laughs for the party. Not only was she a very pretty girl, but she had more animation than most folks; and she was just a little smarter and better groomed than anybody he had seen in Extown. He smiled involuntarily as he watched her eyes dance and her dimples come and go.

At that moment Phillis Conners glanced up and caught his smile. He was wondering if she were really smiling back at him, when she raised her hand high above her head and called, "Hello up there!"

Rabb bowed, lifting the little advertisement cap that he wore on his head. Then he flushed, turned his back on the hilarious quartet below and went on with his painting.

After he finished his job, he came down; and stopped for a moment at the corner of the building. It was then that Phyllis Conners ran from the clubhouse and leaped off the end of the gallery. She was laughing as she ran; but as she leaped her ankle turned and she came down with a shriek, almost at Rabb's feet.

David Bates, her middle-aged golf-partner, followed close behind her. However, it was not Bates but Rabb who gathered her into his arms and carried her to a lounge in the clubhouse.

"Thank you so much," she said, "and please forgive my foolishness."

Lennox accepted her thanks and took his departure.

"That voice!" he said to himself as he walked away.

Phyllis did have a remarkable voice—soft, melodious, deep-throated; with a childish quaver creeping in, every once in a while.

The next time he heard that voice was one morning, as he lay in bed at his cheap boarding house. He had been there a week but he had seen no one but a tired, shabby woman.

"Just leave the dishes, mamma. I'll wash them—" is what that musical voice was saying.

Lennox raised himself on one elbow and listened.

"No, Phyllis, you are not to wash dishes," cams the reply. "You must take care of your hands. Who ever heard of a debutante with dish-washing hands?"

"Near-debutante," corrected the girl.

That was all that Rabb heard; but he kept wondering about this paradoxical girl.

Lennox had come to Exton to close the contract for building a new theater. After he arrived some difficulty arose about the title to the lot. The matter was held up for weeks; and finally the building was postponed indefinitely.

"Unless we can get a suitable lot at a reasonable price we will not build at all," said the head of the concern.

Those weeks of waiting consumed all of Rabb's money. He was forced to move into a cheap room, and then he decided to find some sort of temporary work. The job of painting the country club was all that he could find. Now that was finished.

About noon he put on the best clothes he had, took his soft gray hat and started out to find a restaurant. As he walked out of the rooming house Phyllis came in.

"You!" she exclaimed.

"And you!" he answered, laughing.

They stood for an instant staring at each other.

"Come on and go to lunch with me," he suggested with his disarming smile.

"I can't," she answered as though she had known him always. "I have an engagement with Mr. Bates."

"Break it," he said, "Please!"

"I believe I will," she whispered. Then suddenly, "All right. Doggone it! I might as well do what I want to do, once in a while. Come on, let's go!"

Phyllis was in the mood to tell her troubles. Lennox was the kind of man who invites confidence. And before luncheon was over she had told him the main facts in the case.

Her mother had sent her to college; and slaved every day since in order that Phyllis might meet and marry wealth. That rooming-house, wedged in between fruit-stand, garage and small shops was all that Mrs. Conners had in the world. But by dint of good management she kept it filled with respectable working men.

At school Phyllis had chummed with Lyda Barnes, niece of the wealthiest woman in Extown. When Lyda visited her aunt, Phyllis was included in all her entertainment. From that time on she received invitations that called for fine clothes and a good address.

A cousin, Maxine Thomas, was clerk in the Tutwiler Hotel. It was she who suggested that Phyllis give the fashionable hotel as her address.

"When your friends call I'll tell them that you are not in, and to leave their number. When you have a date you can have the man call for you here and also leave you at the hotel afterwards—"

It became a sort of business—this thing of keeping Phyllis established. Her skill in dressmaking solved the problem of clothes. Her mother's eternal vigilance, her cousin's kindly conniving, her own quick wit did the rest.

Now their efforts were rewarded. David Bates—fat, middle-aged, and prosperous—had at last proposed marriage. She had promised to give him her answer today.

And instead of keeping her tryst with him she had slipped off to eat lunch with an utter stranger!

"You are not going to marry that fat-head," declared Lennox savagely.

"No, I know I'm not, "was her calm reply.

During the 10 days that followed, things happened quickly.

Lennox Rabb found out from Mrs. Conners what price she would consider for her property. He doubled the amount and sold it for her to the corporation that had planned to erect a new theater. After that, he got the contract to build the theater.

The day before the old house was torn down to make way for the new one, Lennox Rabb and Phyllis Conners were married. The ceremony was performed right there in the old-fashioned parlor where her parents were married 25 years before and where Phyllis was christened when she came along.

"After all my work and planning and scheming"—began Mrs. Conners as she put the last pin in the wedding dress. It was Phyllis who finished the sentence:

"I am marrying the grandest man in the world—and praise God! I love him."

Weather Conditions.

The rainstorm is now in the far Northeast, beyond the field of observation. It produced rain, during yesterday and last night, over all the Appalachian Mountain states, and westward over Kentucky and Tennessee to Oklahoma. The skies are still overcast east of the Mississippi river, but the barometer is rising, and no further rain is expected from this cloudy condition.

The high is centered over Michigan. The highest barometer is 30.30 inches at Grand Rapids, and 30.32 at Sault Ste. Marie. Low pressure over the far west is producing cloudy and rainy weather over the Rocky Mountain states, and a gradual rise in temperature over the northern plains. The temperatures are generally below the seasonal normal.

River Conditions.

There was rain over the entire upper basin, but the amounts were light except over the upper Monongahela, where slight rises in the rivers occurred. Stage at Pittsburgh is 10.8 feet; Dam No. 2, 8.4; and Dam No. 6, 7.5 feet. The dams are up. The Ohio and the Allegheny rivers will continue to fall.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Sewickley Dahlia Show to Be Held September 27 and 28 by Horticultural Society in Guild Hall

DAHLIAS and fall have lots and lots of things in common. First of all, they arrive at the same time, and they are both riotous when it comes to color. Here in Pittsburgh and Sewickley dahlias and fall have something more in common—the annual Sewickley dahlia show which all the flower lovers and garden enthusiasts of Pittsburgh and Valley society never would think of missing.

This year the dahlia show will come in late September, when most of our summer wanderers will have returned to their home firesides. The dates set are September 27 and 28, and as usual the event will be held in the Guild Hall of Sewickley, the scene of many an important event socially, such as the Sewickley Cot Club plays.

Of course the show is being given under the auspices of the Sewickley Horticultural Society. This year those in charge of the show are more bent on interesting the amateur than the professional gardener.

The society has asked a number of small groups to join with it this year as well as that veteran of horticulture, the Allegheny County Flower and Garden Association. The Club of Little Gardens and the Little Garden Club of Sewickley and the Village Garden Club of Sewickley are among those that will show their interest by co-operating.

That there is many and many a dahlia worthy of exhibition down in Sewickley one knows after driving through the Heights. Many of our society women down there know much about flowers, like Mrs. Henry R. Rea.

Richard Boxel will be the general chairman of the show, I've been told. Forsythe Patterson and Mrs. Bourdette Kirkendall will take care of publicity with the aid of Henry Goodband.

James Beach will be in charge of [illegible]mission, and R. [illegible]tendent of Mrs. R. [illegible] will see to all ar-

A. E. Bonsey, superintendent of Mrs. William P. Snyder's grounds, will be schedule chairman. The secretary and treasurer for this important event is D. McKinnon, who is Mrs. J. D. Lyon's superintendent of grounds.

ALL summer long I haven't heard of anyone going to New Mexico. And I don't wonder after reading the weather man's report of the normal temperatures there in July and August. ## HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.
U.S. Senator From New York

Ways of Treating Ailments of Legs

MANY persons are afflicted with varicose veins of the legs, varicose ulcers or both. Laundresses, bakers, cooks, barbers, store clerks and other persons who stand on their feet for long hours at a time are apt to suffer with these painful troubles.

DR. COPELAND

As a rule, varicose veins are caused by some interference in the circulation of the blood. Something has produced increased tension in the vessels. It may come after some debilitating sickness, childbirth, or a mechanical injury.

The first symptoms noticed in varicose ulcer are swelling of the limbs, pressure on the veins causing enlargement, twists and knots. Soon after this the tissues break down, because of the lack of elasticity and the stretching of the tissues. Then the ulcers appear.

At first there may be just a reddened surface. But very soon an ulcer is formed. This may be small, or it may involve the surface of the leg to a diameter of five or six inches. In some cases the ulcer extends clear around the leg.

The area between the knee and ankle is almost always the seat of the trouble. Sometimes the varicose veins spread above the knee, but this is not the rule.

From the first appearance of the enlargement of the veins it is a great help to wear either a tight bandage or an elastic stocking. When I say a tight bandage, I do not mean one which cuts off the circulation, but it should be applied firmly enough to give support to the limb.

Elastic stockings may be purchased at any surgical supply house or a drug store carrying these things. In any case, the stockings must be properly fitted by someone who understands their use in such cases.

Local treatment of the ulcer is necessary, but the first thing to do is to build up the general health. Until the general vigor is improved, it is difficult to relieve the local trouble.

Whenever possible a person suffering with varicose veins should remain off the feet, keeping the limb elevated. This may be done by putting a pillow on a chair and resting the limb on it. In this way the excess blood is kept out of the veins and the swelling is reduced.

In cases where the ulcer is open, great care should be exercised in keeping it clean. It should be washed with clean water and soap, dried carefully and then dusted with zinc oxide or powdered quinine. If the wound becomes infected the pus must be cleaned up each day.

Often times the varicose veins do not respond to treatment and operations may be necessary. If so, the doctor will advise you.

Waivers Asked on Aldridge While Grimes Leads Both Leagues—Third Win Over Giants Necessary to Enable Bucs to Gain. Pirates Score 59 Runs in Six Games This Week.

THAT Donie Bush gave John McGraw the worst trimming of the latter's life when he traded Vic Aldridge to him for Burleigh Grimes has been evident all season, but the New York chief's colossal blunder stands out more boldly than ever today in the light of the latest developments.

Burleigh Grimes

For while Grimes was hanging up his twenty-second victory of the season yesterday, mowing down the Giants for the fifth time in as many starts against them, and receiving added acclaim as one of the most valuable players in baseball, it was learned that at the other end of the farcically one-sided deal the New York club has asked waivers on Aldridge.

A WAIVER request does not always mean that a player is going to pass out of the majors. Even his own club may later decide to keep him. But in this case it amounts to an admission on the part of McGraw that he has found Aldridge a complete bust.

The contrast between the worth of Grimes, who is the leading pitcher in both leagues in number of games won, and that of Aldridge, who seemingly has been adjudged of being of no use to the Giants, has never been paralleled in any player-for-player trade made in the big leagues.

IN VIEW of the Pittsburgh club's achievement in slaughtering such a powerful team as the Giants twice in succession by such absurdly lopsided scores as 13 to 3 and 16 to 5, the other pennant contenders in the National League probably are now convinced that the late flag threat of the Pirates is not to be taken lightly.

If the battering Bucs, who in their six games up to date this week have scored 59 runs and made 86 hits in 223 times at bat for a club swatting average of .386.

If the battering Bucs, can slam the New York troupe once more in the final game of the series today, it is safe to predict that the Cards, the Reds and the Cubs, in addition to the shell-shocked Giants themselves, will be just about scared stiff.

THE two brilliant triumphs over the tribe of McGraw will mean no gain for the Pirates in the pennant chase unless they can follow them up with another this afternoon that will make the count three out of four. In the light of the two games won, the loss of the first event on Thursday through a couple of careless pitches when victory was practically within the Bushmen's grasp becomes more galling than ever. But for those slips the Rovers would now have three in a row to their credit with a chance for a clean sweep, and one pennant rival at least would be hanging on the ropes. There still is an opportunity to make it three out of four, however—all that any one could reasonably have expected when the series began. It is up to Remy Kremer to try for the finale today, and in view of the fact that he has won six games in a row and eight of his last nine contests, the outlook for the winning of the important battle is by no means unfavorable.

Remy Kremer

EVERY city appears to have its share of baseball fakers who concoct and circulate ridiculous stories about the home players, individually and collectively, as soon as they fall into a slump.

It wasn't very long ago that the air was filled with a weird assortment of false rumors about the Pirates because they were not winning. The real reasons—illness, injuries and a flock of bad breaks—were ignored, and all sorts of wild tales were told about the players who were in there doing their best.

THE fact that for seven weeks the Corsairs have been playthe best ball in the league, winning 34 of their last 47 games, shows how groundless were the stories about factional strife, fist fights in the club house or elsewhere, broken training rules, unwillingness to hustle for the management, poor generalship, etc.

Bill McKechnie

It would appear that the manner in which the Bushmen have shown up those stories as utterly false, just as other clubs have done in similar cases in the past, would discourage the practice of circulating such yarns during slumps that are part of baseball, but in all probability they will continue as long as the game.

AS MIGHT have been expected, the fiction fever has now broken out in St. Louis with the Cardinals as the victims. Bill McKechnie is having an experience similar to that of Donie Bush earlier in the season. A

CHILLY SAUCE

BY CHILLY DOYLE

SPARKY ADAMS' brilliant performances in the shortfield is one of the outstanding sidelights on the splendid drive of the Bushwhackers. Sparky yesterday completed his twenty-fourth game without an error, his unbroken string of chances reaching 157.

The consistent run of fielding is the result of sparkling action at the two positions around the middle bag. The injury befalling Wright while Bartell was on the hospital list caused Manager Bush to switch Adams to the shortfield, Mack Hillis going to second. Adams was well into his stride before he moved over, but since he made the change his work is even more brilliant than before.

MANY of the recent chances tackled by Sparky justified a slip. On more than a dozen occasions he has had to hustle throws after stopping sizzling of perplexing grounder. But he has yet to fall down on a play.

In 1924 Walter Maranville accepted 164 chances in a row at second base before he faltered on a throw to the plate. The Rabbit's play of that year is one of the brightest pages in his colorful career. And did you notice that the wee marvel was called upon yesterday, his fielding being a feature of the Cards' hairline victory over the Quakers.

PIE TRAYNOR drove in his one-hundredth run in his last duel at the plate yesterday. Pie drove himself in with a homer to register the ninety-ninth tally he has sent

TILDEN AS HE WAS

In the above picture William T. Tilden II, of Philadelphia, is shown as he appeared before taking the bitter dose handed him last night by the United States Lawn Tennis Association. Tilden, for many years the world's greatest tennis player, was found by the tennis "court" to have professionalized himself by writing articles dealing with a tournament in which he was a participant—the Wimbledon tournament of this year. Big Bill previously had announced that should he be ruled a pro he would forsake the courts and attempt to make a success of the business of being an actor.

Denied Tennis, Becomes "Actor"

DECLARE STAR BROKE PLAYER-WRITER RULE

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(AP.)—William T. Tilden II, gaunt veteran of the tennis courts, has been barred indefinitely from amateur competition.

The lanky Philadelphian, veteran of nine Davis cup campaigns, six times holder of the national singles title and by many regarded as the greatest tennis player of all times, was found guilty early today of violating the amateur player-writer rule of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

This verdict, reached by the association's executive committee after nearly six hours of discussion, was accompanied by Tilden's indefinite suspension from further competition as an amateur.

VIOLATED RULES

The committee, announcing its decision in a lengthy statement, held that Tilden clearly had violated the player-writer rule by his newspaper articles on the English championships this summer at Wimbledon where he was a competitor.

Little surprised by the adverse decision, Tilden, who now is in Boston in connection with a vaudeville appearance, refused to comment. Friends intimated, however, that he would seek reinstatement at a meeting of the executive committee next month. The by-laws of the U. S. L. T. A. provide for reinstatement of any suspended player upon submission of evidence "satisfactory" to the association's executive committee that reinstatement is merited.

The charges against Tilden, made by the advisory and finance committee of the U. S. L. T. A., first came to public print on July 19, on the eve of the Davis Cup inter-zone finals at Paris between Italy and the United States. The Philadelphian, captain of the American forces, was dropped from the squad but was reinstated in time to play in the challenge round against France. The move that sent Tilden

JOSEPHINE M'KIM and Susan Laird, Western Pennsylvania's representatives on the U. ## Mrs. Chapin Gives Helen Wills Test

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 25.—(AP.)—Drama in three acts was staged in the women's national tennis championship yesterday as the game's famous playing mothers, Mrs. May Sutton Bundy and Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, were eliminated after a memorable struggle between themselves, and Miss Helen Wills fought off the first real challenge she has received this year.

Most melodramatic of all, was the first act in which Mrs. Wightman, of Boston, who won this same championship back in 1909, downed Mrs. Bundy, of Santa Monica, Cal., who was champion in 1904, by scores of 6-4, 11-9, with a masterly display of teasing, chopping, sharp shooting tennis. That was in the morning.

Then in the afternoon, Mrs. Wightman found herself in turn playing the minor role and going down to inexorable defeat before one of California's youthful best, Miss Edith Cross of San Francisco, 6-3, 6-4.

HELEN MEETS TEST

Act three featured Miss Wills in her first real test of the year. Mrs. Charlotte Hosmer Chapin gave back stroke for stroke before she went down to defeat, 6-2, 6-4, before the world champion's harder stroking. To Miss Chapin went the consolation of having taken more games from Miss Wills than the Queen of the courts has lost to any other player in winning the championships of the United States, England and France in the past year.

In the first match today Miss Wills is to take on Miss Gross while Mrs. Mallory encounters Miss Jacobs an hour later. The semi-finals in doubles are to be held tomorrow afternoon although no admission can be charged because of a local ordinance.

MOLLA WINS

Mrs. Molla Mallory scored with competitive ease over Miss Virginia Hillary of Philadelphia, 6-2, 6-4, as did Miss Wills over Mrs. L. A. Harper of Los Angeles, 6-0, 6-2.

Miss Jacobs, the only one of the four who was called upon to play one singles match, won in the third round by the default of Mrs. Lillian Scharman Hester of New York, whose daughter is ill. In the afternoon the stocky, hard hitting Californian steam rollered Miss Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va., 6-4, 6-1.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Chicago—Billy Petrolle knocked out Jack Herg, 5 rounds; Murray Layton and Harry Larrabee drew, 5 rounds; Harry Schuman and Mickey McDough drew, 5 rounds.

At Erie, Pa.—Heavy Andrews defeated Cuddy DeMarco, 10 rounds; Jack Morgan and Johnny Freeman drew, 6 rounds; Jimmy Reed defeated Tony Brown, 6 rounds; Tom Malco won by a technical knockout over Teddy Wilson, 2 rounds.

At Detroit—Ray Miller defeated Freddy Mueller, 10 rounds; Pete Firpo knocked out Clarence Rosen, 7 rounds.

At Long Branch, N. J.—Leo Lomski and Maxie Rosenbloom drew, 10 rounds; Jackie Pilkington defeated Joey Kaufman, 10 rounds; Joe LaGrey and Andy Divodi drew, 10 rounds.

At New York—Joe Barlow won by a technical knockout over Jack Segan, 5 rounds.

At Saratoga, N. Y.—Joe Gans defeated Frank Deschner, 10 rounds; Frank Ponzo defeated Walter Hemble, 10 rounds.

At San Diego, Cal.—Mike Payan defeated Farmer Joe Cooper, 10 rounds.

At San Francisco—Pete Meyers defeated Jimmy Finley, 10 rounds; Battling Dozier defeated Eddie White, 6 rounds.

TILDEN AS HE IS

In this picture Tilden is shown in the role of actor, a role in which he will continue so long as he satisfies "his public." At the present time the former net wizard is appearing in a vaudeville skit in a Waltham, Mass., theater. He is to continue in vaudeville next week, and says he is considering signing up for an extensive engagement. In the scene pictured here Big Bill is shown sharing the spotlight with Marjorie Daw of motion picture fame.

Yankees Buy Ryan, Former Giant Star

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(AP.)—Wilfred D. (Rosy) Ryan, the Holy Cross righthander who formerly pitched for the Giants, has been purchased by the Yankees from Toledo of the American Association.

The pitcher is best remembered in New York for his vain effort to check the Yankees in the eighth inning of the sixth game of the 1923 world series when he relieved Nehf with one out, the bases filled and the Giants one run ahead.

Acting on McGraw's special order to "throw one in the dirt" to Ruth after the count reached three and two, Ryan saw the Bambino swing vainly at a pitch which bounced in front of the plate, but Bob Meusel singled to center, winning the game and the series.

O'Loughlin Captures South Pa. Title

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

BEDFORD SPRINGS, Pa., Aug. 25.—Dr. John O'Loughlin, Pittsburgh Athletic Association ace, has added the men's singles net championship of Southern Pennsylvania to his earlier acquired West Penn title through a spectacular 6-3, 6-3, 6-1 triumph over S. Jarvis Adams, Jr., former Steelcitian and present veteran star of Forest Hills.

The decision, utterly reversing Adams' overwhelming victory at O'Loughlin's expense on muddy turf in the Western Maryland tourney at Mountain Lake Park last week. The victory was scored yesterday before a colorful and enthusiastic gallery on the Bedford Springs Hotel court, and arrived as a complete surprise, especially in view of the fact that Adams eliminated Dave, ordinarily rated the strongest of the crack O'Loughlin requet trio, in straight sets, 6-2, 6-4.

O'Loughlin undoubtedly owes his wide margined verdict to the devastating attack he maintained on

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

THERE was no fear upon the Pirates today as they prepared to swap punches with the Giants in the final clash of the season of the two clubs in the Oakland orchard. After what the Buccos accomplished in the last two games with the Polo Grounders they could hardly be expected to be panic-stricken.

On the other hand, the Giants are in a mood to "bring one up from the floor" as it were. The New York boys doubtless are highly insulted and its a safe bet that their manager did not let them stray far from their camp last night, in view of the lacings absorbed at the hands of the Bold Buccos. The Bushwhackers were full of the dickens yesterday as they hung a 16 to 5 black-eye on the ambitious foemen. The men of McGraw lost a full game to the Cardinals who defeated the Phils on a hair line decision on the power of recruit Orsatti's bat.

KREMER TO HURL

Remy Kremer, the hard-working Frenchman will strive to get his seventh consecutive triumph in the finale today. Remy warmed up in the bullpen yesterday as the Giants made gay with Burleigh Grimes for a brief moment. Frenchy, however, did not have to exert himself and should be on edge for the task at hand.

The Giants are only four games ahead of the Buccos, with the Cubs and Reds sandwiched in between. The double victory of the Bruins yesterday boosted their stock as flag-contenders, they being only three and one-half games behind the Redbirds. The leaders are five and one-half games ahead of the Buccos.

After winding up with the Giants this afternoon, the Pirates will head for Cincinnati to take on the Reds in two games tomorrow and Monday. Returning here Tuesday they will

Berg was floored nine times in the first round and once again in the third.

Tunney, Shaw to Meet

LONDON, Aug. 25.—(AP.)—There is a good chance that Gene Tunney will achieve his wish to meet George Bernard Shaw, who is taking a holiday at Antibes, France.

The Daily Mail's correspondent at Antibes told Shaw of Tunney's expressed desire to meet him and the latter replied:

"Tell Gene I will be delighted to meet him, in fact, I have every intention of making his acquaintance. I will be back in London September 15, and hope to see him then."

Shaw added that he did not intend to allow reporters or photographers at the meeting.

"We will meet as private gentlemen," he said. "I will discuss boxing and Gene will discuss literature, so we ought to get along very well.

Shaw thinks that Tunney is very sensible in giving up boxing now that he intends to marry.

"Look what happened to Carpentier and Dempsey," he commented. "Marriage softened them and finished them."

"All I know about Tunney's literary taste is that he disapproves Cashel Byron's profession," Shaw said. "So do I. It shows he has some taste and that we have something in common."

DINNER FOR GENE

LONDON, Aug. 25.—(AP.)—Isaac Gimbel, president of Gimbel Brothers, New York department store, and Mrs. Gimbel, will give a dinner at a London hotel Monday night in honor of Gene Tunney. ### THE DIVER AWARDED RACE AT SARATOGA

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(AP.)—The Diver won the Amsterdam claiming stake, feature at Saratoga, yesterday, but it took an official decision to do it.

H. P. Whitney's Clearance was the actual winner, but was disqualified when his jockey, Tommy Luther, carried The Diver very wide on the stretch turn. The Diver, owned by J. Livingston, and the 13-to-20 favorite, was declared the winner. Luther was set down for six days. Second place went to Sage Boy and the show to Bigot. The time for the mile was 1:41 3-5. The race carried a value of $2,700.

Chick Evans Meets Defeat

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—(AP.)—A cat may have nine lives, but it seems that Chick Evans can not have nine western amateur golf championships. He has failed for the fourth time in his quest for the ninth title, but his elimination in the semi-finals, 3 and 2, by Frank Dolp, of Portland, was long delayed by the Oregonian, who played so deliberately that both opponent and gallery were able to take short naps between shots.

But the painfully methodical Dolp finally won after nearly seven hours and got the right to contest the finals for his second title with Gus Novotny, a Chicagoan of Bohemian extraction, who defeated Lawrence Moller of Quincy, Ill., a Notre Dame golfer, 4 and 3. The pair will clash today.

Whether Dolp wore Evans down with his tortoise pace, or whether Chick could not recover from the slump that obsessed him at the start of the round, it was certain that even the winner did not shoot the par golf he has exhibited previously. It was rather a game of trying to give away holes, for neither could take consistent advantage of the other's frequent mistakes.

In the other match it was much the same as to quality of golf, but it provided more thrills than the large gallery saw in following Evans and Dolp. Evans finally awoke to find himself out of the race, and, yawning wearily, said in explanation of his inability to play well: "It is just one of those days."

A novelty for Evans was the fact that he never was up during the match. He lost the third hole and then won the seventh to be even, but dropped the next two to be two down at the quarter post, including two stymies that cost him that margin. His first birdie won him the long eleventh, but he went two down at the thirteenth, where he overshot the green. With his second birdie, Chick took the seventeenth, holing a 15-foot putt, and he cut his disadvantage to one down by taking the eighteenth when Dolp got in a trap and then overshot the carpet.

The afternoon brought no solace to Evans, for he lost the nineteenth when Dolp's chip from a deep trap stopped dead to the hole for a par. He did cut the lead to one up by taking the twentieth in par, but the Oregonian star got down a 10-foot putt for a par on the twenty-second where both failed to reach the green and Dolp was two ahead again.

Yesterday's result kept up the week's custom of ousting the favorites. Six of the 10 members of the British Walker cup team failed to pass the medal play examination. Then in the first match round the four British qualifiers, the medalist and the defending champion, went out at the hands of lusty youths, most of them university golfers.

The second round witnessed the passing of such notables as Dexter Cummings, twice inter-collegiate champion for Yale; John Ames, golf captain last year at Princeton; Jimmy Manion, of St. Louis, and Jimmy Ward, of Kansas City. The third round's most noted victim was Dr. O. F. Willing, of Portland, Pacific northwest amateur and open titleholder, and then fell Chick Evans, only American Walker cup team member who took part in the tourney.

LOTT, VAN RYN REACH FINALS

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 25.—(AP.)—George Lott, Chicago member of the American Davis Cup team, and John Van Ryn, Princeton star from Orange, N. J., have swept into the final round of singles competition in the annual Casino invitation tennis tournament.

Lott defeated Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N. J., eastern clay court champion and runner-up in the recent Southampton tournament, by scores of 7-5, 9-7, 7-5. Van Ryn gained his place in the finals by unexpectedly defeating John Doeg, of Santa Monica, Cal., 6-3, 9-7, 3-6, 6-3.

Lott was slow in whipping himself into top form, and Mangin, playing the best tennis of his career, kept the Davis Cup luminary constantly on the run.

Doeg could offer little defense for Van Ryn's steady play. Except in the third set, when Van Ryn eased up a bit, Doeg made little or no headway against the Princeton star.

Both singles finalists also figure in the finals of the doubles, to be played today. The singles finals are set for 10:30 a. m. Van Ryn, paired with Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., reached the finals by defeating the Australian team of R. O. Cummings and E. F. Moon in a great five-set match, 6-1, 1-6, 10-8, 4-6, 7-5. Earlier in the day Lott and Doeg won in straight sets from the Waban, Mass., team of Malcolm Hill and Henry L. Johnson, 6-3, 9-7, 6-4.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

few weeks ago the Cardinals were the greatest team in the world in the opinion of the Mound City fans, but since they began to slump the public attitude has changed and the time-worn fakes are now being handed around. The batting earnestness of Frankie Frisch in the disastrous Giant series is being questioned because he went to the plate 15 times without making a hit; it is rumored that there are cliques in the camp, that Jim Bottomley and Chick Hafey had a fistic encounter (there must always be a fist fight, it seems), and that many other things about the team are not what they should be. It's a great life.

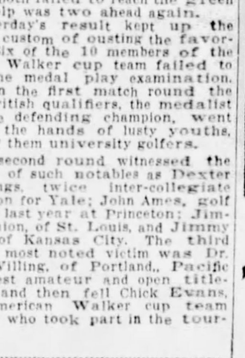
MIKE CVENGROS, who shared in the world series spoils last year as a member of the Pirates, is in line for another slice of extra money this season as the result of a sensational drive made by the Wichita Falls club of the Texas League, for which he is now pitching.

The Spudders won 17 games in a row before they were stopped by Fort Worth in a hard-fought battle, 3 to 1. Mike was quite a factor in the streak, not only pitching in his turn but serving as pinch-hitter and occasionally working as emergency outfielder. He won the fifteenth victory of the string, which was snapped before his next turn came around.



Mike Cvengros

THE dash gave Wichita Falls a big lead in the second half of the race, and it appears certain that that team will be the one to play off with Houston, winner of the first half, for the right to meet the Southern Association victors in the Dixie series. Last year Fred Fussell, now with the Bucs, pitched Wichita Falls to victory in the post-season series against New Orleans, winning two of the four games played.

Wichita Falls fans are raising a fund of $7,500 to present to Cvengros and his mates as a reward for their 17-game winning streak.

MILLER HUGGINS picks the Giants to grab the National League pennant, though they have won only one series on their final western trip, but admits that Pittsburgh must be watched. "The Giants have been playing great ball against the toughest clubs in the league and look like pennant winners to me," said the Yankee manager. "I think the Cardinals are through. They've beaten themselves. Don't overlook the Pirates. They have a fine chance. They are not far behind the leaders and are coming strongly."

into action against the French was made only at the insistence of Myron T. Herrick, American ambassador to France. Officials of the U. S. L. T. A. submitted to this request, but served notice that Tilden would be brought to trial when he returned to this country.

FAILS TO APPEAR

Apparently convinced that he was fighting a losing battle, "Big Bill" failed to appear before the committee, offering his defense, instead, in a letter he sent several days ago to Samuel H. Collom, president of the association. In this communication, he vigorously denied any intent to violate the player-writer rule and contended that if any violation had occurred it had been due to "ignorance."

But the executive committee could not see it that way. Reviewing the various controversies in which Tilden had engaged with authorities over the rule during the last three years and citing the fact that he had been warned before, the committee announced that it could not accept "Mr. Tilden's plea that he did not 'intentionally violate or attempt to evade the spirit or letter of the rule.'"

The resolutions, finding Tilden guilty as charged and imposing the indefinite suspension, were passed unanimously by the 18 members of the committee.

The committee statement revealed that the adverse decision against the veteran star had been influenced not only by his Wimbledon articles but also by another written by him in France on July 17 for the Christy Walsh Syndicate and published in the New York World the following day. In this dispatch Tilden announced the lineup for the United States team against the Italians.

"No announcement of the players who would represent the United States in the Italian match was made in any other newspaper published in the United States until the following day, July 19, when announcement was made in an Associated Press dispatch from France," the committee declared.

TILDEN IS SILENT

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—"What of it?" was "Big Bill" Tilden's comment when informed at his hotel here today that the United States Lawn Tennis Association had found him guilty of violating the amateur player-writer rule.

"I have not been informed officially of the association's action," said Tilden, "and I do not care to make any statement at this time."

Tilden is in vaudeville here.

P. R. R. Stars Clash At Pitcairn Today

By JESS CARVER

A RECORD entry list, both from the standpoint of numbers and class, is ready to tear into a widely-diversified program on the cinders, in the field, on the tennis court, the diamond and in the horseshoe and quoit pits and at the traps in the annual P. R. R. Central Region outdoor championships at Pitcairn today.

The entire central division of the P. R. R., from the Great Lakes as far south as West Virginia and from Altoona westward to Columbus, O., will be represented in the varied program today. The victors in all events will represent the district in the P. R. R. all-region championships at Altoona, September 22. The divisions competing today will include Pittsburgh, Altoona, Columbus, Buffalo, Erie, Cleveland and the Eastern Ohio sector, comprising teams from Canton, Akron and Massillon.

So evenly divided does the strength seem to be that it is impossible to even hint as to the section likely to emerge with a majority in champions and championships.

There are those, however, who have individual stars in mind and who might be tempted to wager you that their idols will come through victorious. Elizabeth Weber, of the Buffalo section, will be a favorite in the girls' sprints, especially in the 100-yard event. They say that this fellow McCullough, of Buffalo, is the best bet in the mile.

Harry Smith, kingpin athlete among the men of the Pittsburgh division, will give them all a merry tussle in the hurdles, quarter mile and the high jump. J. A. Vogel, of the Conomaugh division, who was touted as regional 100-yard champion in the recent region meet at Pitcairn, is expected to make a great try to regain the laurels he held for three years and to add the divisional championship to his list. He will be opposed by the man who beat him three weeks ago, Coulter, of the Monongahela division.

Elizabeth Erslk and Vera Milcic, Pittsburgh division girl sprinters, have high hopes of outspeeding Miss Weber. If they do, then a record is very likely to fall. Miss Erslk, erstwhile a 50-yard dash entrant, may desert the shorter distance for the century today. In that case it will be up to Miss Milcic to carry the burden alone in the 50.

While the trackers, trap-shooters, netters and baseballers are competing at Pitcairn, the rifle shots will shoot it out at Johnstown.

Today's meet will start at 10:30 a. m., with the trial heats in all events scheduled to start at that time. The finals will be held in the afternoon, along with the championship baseball game between Jack Clawson's crack Pitcairn nine and the Columbus, O., tossers.

Frank Shea, track coach at the University of Pittsburgh, will referee the meet and will be ably assisted by the personnel of the P. R. R. athletic bureau.

PIRATES

play the Quakers three games in two days and will follow these fights with three days of scrapping with the Cardinals. Skipper Bill brings his team here Thursday to finish out the week.

In the first two rounds of yesterday's clash with the Giants it was feared that the Buccos were in for a trimming as the enemy nicked Burleigh Grimes for three tallies in the two innings. But when the Pirates began to step out there was nothing to it.

BUCS HAMMER BALL

The Bushwhackers hammered five of McGraw's chuckers for 19 hits including a homer by Pie Traynor. The spectacle brought to the Duke of Burleigh his twenty-second success of the season and his fifth triumph in a row over the Giants. Of course this was "hard to take" by Burleigh.

A six-run offensive was the Pirate contribution to the second inning. In the fourth they rushed four more counters over and they added to their total as they moved along, four runs being made in the seventh.

Joe Genewich failed to last two rounds. McGraw was so anxious to cop the contest he even sent Larry Benton to the hill. Vic Aldridge pitched the last two frames against his former mates and the Pirates took especial delight in pounding Victor for five runs and five hits.

CHILLYSAUCE

over the plate. In respect to driving in teammates it is likely that Traynor will set a new mark for himself this year.

Paul Waner is ready to pass Rogers Hornsby in batting any day, yet it is immeasurably more important for the Pirates to win ball games than to have the best batter of the league on the team. But Brother Paul is not the sort of an athlete to put his own records ahead of the club's interests. He has ever been a teamworker of unselfish hue, and the same can be said just as strongly of his kid brother.

CLASS A FINAL FRAY TODAY

The final of the Class A tourney will be staged this afternoon at Edgar Thompson Field, Braddock, with the W. L. Reineckers and the W. O. W. outfit, of McKees Rocks, battling for the right to represent Western Pennsylvania in the National Baseball Federation eliminations at Cincinnati.

This is the final round, and out of the 52 clubs that went into the tourney the Reineckers and the Rox outfit are left to battle. Manager Collette, of the hill club, expects to start Gettings, who won over the Dan Heeps in the semi-final. Manager Jednak, of the W. O. W. club, is sending Laboon back to try to duplicate his semi-final triumph.

Olympic games and was arranged by the Homestead Chamber of Commerce, the Kiwanis, Rotary and other civic organizations.

The train bearing the swimmers was met at East Liberty Station by a delegation and escorted to West Field in automobiles. Miss McKim and Miss Laird spoke a few words to the great crowd through the means of loud speakers.

In response to the ovation Miss Laird said: "I want to thank all the Homestead and surrounding townspeople for making it possible to go to the Olympic games, and also thank Jack Scarry, my coach, for his wonderful help."

Miss McKim, who is leaving the Pittsburgh district to go back to the Canal Zone with her father and mother, said: "I am too happy to make a speech. We did our best over there."

William S. Haddock, president of the A. M. A., welcomed the girls home on behalf of the A. A. U., and in mentioning the fact that both girls were members of the team that broke the 400-meters record, stated that, while there was considerable dissatisfaction regarding the girls being left off the team in the finals, it was Coach Bachrach, and not John Taylor, the team manager, that made the final decision. Neither Miss McKim nor Miss Laird swam in the relay finals; instead, Miss Norelious and Adele Lambert took their places.

In welcoming the girls back home, W. F. Stevens, superintendent of Homestead Library, made the presentation to the girls. Harold Crider spoke for Munhall, Henry Knouber for West Homestead, J. T. Potts for Mifflin township, J. R. Haynes for Whittaker and W. T. Adams for Hays borough, and Burgess Cavanaugh gave the address for Homestead.

The following swimmers, who, as members of the Homestead Library Swimming Club, have won A. M. S. championships this season, were also presented to the gathering and given medals by Coach Scarry: Mae Cutnell, Florence Goga, Hannah Loughlin, Lenore Kight, Harry Loughlin, G. Vellowe and H. Martin. Margaret Ader and Virginia Reese were members of the track team that went to New Jersey for the elimination trials.

enemy backhand. Faltering under the heavy fire, Adams crowded the port corner and opened the remainder of the rectangle to a series of ripping cross court drives that disorganized his usually impeccable base line game.

O'Loughlin and Adams, cavorting together in doubles, entered the final round by virtue of default, defeating Irving Goodman and Russell Kambach, youthful Peabody High School, Carnegie Tech pair, 6-1, 6-3, and of profiting by the semi-final default of Jim Yon and H. L. Stewart, Jr., of Altoona. The title tilt was postponed because of rain, but will be staged today after disposal of an engagement involving the Latrobe-P. A. A. combine of Brown and Sullivan, with Roth and Fay, Mercersburg Academy, Altoona, pair.

Mid-afternon rain caused interruption of the women's finale between Rose Straub, Johnstown girl and defending premier, and Mary McDonnell, Fallen Timber luminary. Miss Straub captured set one from her ultra-steady opponent 10-8, but dropped the second canto in short order, 6-2. Miss Straub was leading at 2-1 in the third session when the downpour put quietus on hostilities until today.

The Prince of Wales — His Story.

Investiture of Title One Of Notable Events Of Prince's Life

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

His Royal Highness, Edward, Prince of Wales, heir to the British throne, was born at White Lodge, Richmond, in midsummer of 1894, the son of the Duchess and Duke of York, now King George V. It was in the early days of Queen Victoria's fifty-eighth year of sovereignty. Guilty of much mischief during his childhood days, he was often punished. When he grew older he was sent to Osborne Naval College, where he made rapid progress in his studies. He made his first appearance in the robes of state at the coronation of his father.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Edward P."

By WALTER AND LEONARD TOWNSEND

SINCE he had been at Osborne the Prince had sought companionship with others on a more or less equal footing, but now there was more respect and deference shown to him than had been necessary when he was Cadet Edward of Wales, and this "difference" robbed the hitherto carefree life at college of much of its charm. The Prince found it irksome to be left out of the fun merely on account of his titles, when the boy himself had so little altered his outlook.

PRINCE OF WALES

But not for long did the Prince dwell upon such problems. School life was all absorbing, and he found himself attending to his studies with his customary zeal. Except for a slight diversion, when he left school for a few hours and joined his parents at Torbay to witness spectacular demonstrations by a part of the Fleet, the Prince's studies were uninterrupted until holidays began in early August.

A few days were spent at Marlborough House, prior to a short vacation in Scotland, at Balmoral Castle. While there he was a frequent visitor at nearby Mar Lodge, were lived the Princess Royal.

Prince Albert and Princess Mary were also at home, and the young trio spent the days in London following divers pursuits. On one occasion David and his sister visited the Japan-British Exhibition.

Meanwhile, the people of Wales were not wholly satisfied with the formal manner in which the Prince had been invested with his title of the principality. Not since the birth of the son of King Edward I had a Prince of Wales been invested on Welsh soil.

A wave of loyalty was gripping the country at this time, due in no little measure to the genial influence which the late King Edward VII had exercised over all his subjects and which he had passed on to his son, George.

It was not surprising that the Welsh people were so keenly desirous of welcoming their Prince to his country.

King Uncompromising

The authorities at Cardiff met to discuss the matter, and it was resolved that a humble petition be placed before His Majesty, craving that he should grant his permission to "revive the ancient and honourable ceremonial of the Investiture of the Prince of Wales in accordance with the manner following the investing of King Edward II with such modifications or additions as His Majesty might direct . . ."

Further, it was put forward that if the ceremony be allowed to take place the most suitable site was Cathay's Park, Cardiff, where it would be possible for over a million spectators to witness the Investiture.

Immediately it became known that the Welsh people were agitating for the Investiture to take place within the Principality the people of Chester, too, expressed a wish for the Prince to be invested with his Earldom within the city from which it took its name.

The King was therefore again approached to grant his approval, and as an additional point for consideration it was pointed out that the Earldom was of even older origin than that of the title of Prince of Wales. In this picturesque Highlands of Scotland, the Prince of Wales knew little of the plans which were being made on his behalf.

The following month, September, the Prince of Wales returned to Dartmouth and, between studies, trained assiduously to take his part in the annual regatta of the cadets of the Royal Naval College to be held early in October. When the day for the sports arrived the Prince took his place as coxswain in the boat for a pair-oar race. The Prince's boat won easily, and it was a popular victory.

Negotiations between the peoples of Wales and Chester and the King continued, but the King and Queen, having great demands upon their time for many months ahead, were as yet uncertain if the wishes of the Cardiff and Chester authorities could be gratified.

Moreover it was necessary to consider the wisdom of allowing the young Prince to take part in a public ceremonial the nature and importance of which he might not fully realize.

The citizens of Chester were optimistic that their wish would materialize, despite the King's uncomprising reply that it was considered expedient to delay the proposal until definite arrangements had been made concerning the Investiture ceremony at Wales. It was suggested that the Royal party might find it convenient to break their journey to Wales at

CANDIDATE BEATEN UP IN POLICE BATTLE

Swathed in bandages and looking as if he had met four Dempseys in the same ring, Jack Burke, 26, former sparring partner of the ex-champion, appeared in Central Police Court today and was held on charges of transporting and possessing liquor.

Burke, who resides at 72 Twenty-sixth street, an applicant for the position of deputy constable in the Second Ward, "made a pass" at Patrolman Raymond Miller, the officer testified, when Miller stopped an auto driven by James Battell, 21, of 1109 Bedford avenue, in which Burke was a passenger. The automobile, according to testimony, contained three five-gallon cans of moonshine.

A battle followed and Burke and Battell were arrested. Ten stitches were necessary to close wounds on Burke's head. Later police arrested Assad Carey, a garage owner, of 1320 Webster avenue. The liquor had been placed in Battell's car in the garage, police assert. Battell and Carey were also held on liquor charges.

PLUNGES 10 STORIES TO HIS DEATH

Falling from his room on the tenth floor of the Roosevelt Hotel early today, David D. Thomson, 48, a salesman, of Columbus, O., was killed instantly when his body struck the pavement in McCrea way.

The victim, clad only in his underwear, is believed to have been sitting on the window ledge when he fell.

A taxicab driver, whose machine was parked near the entrance to McCrea way which runs in the rear of the hotel, told police he heard the body strike the pavement. The man was pronounced dead at the Allegheny General Hospital and the body was removed to the morgue. Thomson was employed by the Manon Fibre Company of Chicago.

THIEF SNATCHES $100, FLEES

A collector got $100 from William Mueller, manager of the Eagle Grocery, North and Lincoln avenues, Millvale, but he was not an authorized collector.

Mueller said that as he finished counting out $100 to give to the collector for the company, a man rose up beside him and grabbed the money and dashed out of the store at 7:30 o'clock this morning.

Mueller told Millvale police that he believed the man entered the store while he was in the rear and hit behind a counter and waited his return.

TRAP THIEF ON PORCH ROOF

Trapped on a porch roof of an Oakmont dwelling early today where he had fled when discovered inside the house, an alleged robber was arrested by police. Lodged in the Oakmont Police Station the prisoner said he was Franklin Rimmel, 21, of Verona. The prisoner had removed his shoes and had them in his coat pockets, police say.

Mrs. Mary Stanich, of Plum street was awakened by a noise in an adjoining bedroom and upon investigating came face to face with the prowler, she told police. He fled through a window where he was trapped by Patrolman Edward Helwig who had been attracted by the woman's cries.

Mrs. Beatrice L. Kaercher, who lives in Beaver road, Glen Osborne, exclusive residential section near Sewickley, has brought action for divorce against Elmer L. Kaercher. She charges he made life intolerable for her. The couple were married March 22, 1920, and separated September 1, 1927.

Two 1923 May marriages also went on the rocks, according to libels filed in Common Pleas Court. Mrs. Pearl Mildred Myers, 204 Coltart square, claims that Charles Lee Myers endangered her life. Bertha Christine Moersch, 5617 Carnegie avenue, charges her husband with cruel and barbarous treatment.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

A GROUP of inherently honest, but mischievous, prankish boys left Pittsburgh for a week-end trip to New York. There were hundreds of them. In the dining room of a New York hotel they ate, and after having eaten, some of them appropriated a large portion of the silverware. Sleuths of the hotel soon were notified and they followed the boys to the train. The sleuths brought large baskets with them. Planting them in the railroad cars they announced: "We'll return and expect the baskets to be filled with the stolen silverware." They came back a short time later, and a check-up disclosed every piece of silverware recovered. The boys were not dishonest, but prankish. All were relieved at the opportunity to return the stolen silver. Officials in charge of the boys' trip were unaware of the theft until the sleuths showed up.

TOM MORGAN, a city detective, who has 10 years' service in, although he is now only 31 years old, says the most interesting thief he ever encountered was the man who amused himself while waiting to rob a home by hiding in the house and jotting down the conversation he heard among members of the family. When finally caught, this extraordinary burglar recalled to several of the families he visited the troubles they discussed when he was within earshot. In one or two cases families were sorry he was ever caught. There may be a moral in this. Wives ought not to bawl out husbands. There may be an eavesdropping burglar handy.

A NORMAL, interesting man, engaged successfully in a well-paying profession and living in a nearby borough, still gets as much fun out of toys as he did when he was a youngster. Possibly all men like toys, but few are so frank as the man in question.

He entertained friends the other night by showing them a mechanical trolley car that he winds up, a monkey whose head is manipulated to answer questions, a fireman's hat and a policeman's cap.

The man in question got no more fun out of his array than his guests. One thing marred the evening. An old gentleman with a gray beard cried a little when told he could not operate a small engine that runs around a circular track. He had had one turn and wanted another one, failing to consider an old lady present who at the moment was winding up the engine.

SCHOOL, DANCE HALL BAR SOCKLESS GIRLS; ONE SUES

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 25.—(AP.)—Authorities and pupils of Lowell high school here disagreed today as to the action taken yesterday against girls who attended classes stockingless.

School officials denied that they had sent the girls home, but added that they had a perfect right to do so and might do it yet.

On the other hand a score of girls told parents, who listened with varying reactions, that they had been ejected from school and ordered to cover their bare legs before returning.

Some of the parents stood by their offspring today and defended the stockingless fad on the grounds of health and cleanliness.

Others said they would support the school heads in any ruling they made.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 25.—(AP.)—The question of propriety of the stockingless fad has reached the courts here. Mrs. Jonne Wallace filed suit against a dancing school company and its manager for $5,000.70, charging she was humiliated to that extent when she was barred from the dancing school because she wore no stockings.

"It is the custom and practice to abandon the wearing of hose and the same is not against the correct rules of society," Mrs. Wallace's petition said.

The 70 cents was claimed as a refund for the price of the ticket Mrs. Wallace said she bought to enter the ball room.

Strapped in a strait-jacket and minus one shoe, Thomas Hurley, 24, an inmate of the county home at Woodville, was at large for several hours last night. He was found by Mt. Lebanon police in Cochrane road.

Hurley escaped late yesterday, and, hiding in a nearby wood until dark, made his way to Mt. Lebanon. Patrolman John Swoager said Hurley had cut the sleeve straps with a piece of glass and was trying to cut the remainder of his fastenings.

Ione Checks Alan When He Becomes Extravagant in Buying Furniture

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ione Farr, just out of high school, gets a position with Max Weimar, a music publishing house in New York. Her chum, Marie Karey, is engaged to Palmer Elliott, a young lawyer, whom she later marries. She is always holding up as a model Ione's married sister, Jenepher, who has a small son and also holds a fine position in a smart New York shop. Benz, Weimer's office manager, takes Ione to Tin Pan Alley, where she meets the famous song writer, Wolfie Speed. Ione falls in love with Alan Blake, an accompanist, and they plan to be married as soon as Blake can support her. She is inclined to be jealous of Fluff Harwick, a new girl in the office. She feels that Jenepher is proving that a wife cannot hold down a job and run a household and do both successfully. She tries to be nice to Fluff, but the latter repulses her and she has her first quarrel with Blake on account of her. At Marie's house for dinner they learn all about a 50-50 marriage. Benz makes further plans to advance Ione. He tells her jobs are not handed out through friendship but ability. Alan is made branch manager for his firm and gets a raise. He urges Ione to marry him at once. Ione insists, however, on giving her employer notice and the day is set for the wedding. Alan arrives and finds Ione in her bridal attire awaiting him. After the wedding they visit Alan's folks. The following week they return to the city and hunt for an apartment.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

THEY rode endlessly and got out at a busy, clean street of big, new buildings. The one they sought was just around the corner, and the apartment they had come to see was new and shining; a tiny hallway opening into a large bedroom and living room; a tile bath and a white kitchen on beyond.

Nobody had lived in it as yet, the agent told them, Ione was all but dancing with excitement; she wished to rent it at once.

"But they're inside rooms, Io. Windows all on courts—"

She pointed out that the kitchen windows gave on a little park over beyond the L tracks; besides there was plenty of light. And hardwood floors, and the darlingest built-in cupboards!

So they rented it and went back around the corner to a furniture store. And now it was that Ione again must put a check on her astonishing husband. He halted before this expensive thing and that one, all ready to order any and all of them sent over and installed in the fifty dollar flat.

"But Lan, dearest!" she kept saying. "Think of the cost! It would run into thousands."

He answered impatiently, "We don't have to pay all at once, do we? Nothing to worry about I guess."

"We'd have to pay sometime. It would take forever. Oh, don't you see? Besides we won't need a lot of things or expensive ones. Let's look at that fibre set with the chintz cushions—don't you like it? And so reasonable—"

He gave in reluctantly. There was a big divan and a chair and oval table, oak brown, very attractive; and the cushions were figured in gold and yellow and green.

They paid disproportionately high for a rug but Ione explained, demurely, it was economy. And they picked out a lounging chair that fairly swallowed them both in its deep cushions. The flat had kitchen furniture; there remained only things for the bedroom to be bought, and they selected a buff-enameled set with a long mirror in the dresser and cane-seated stool to match.

Then she led him out triumphantly. For they had agreed to pay thirty dollars a month on a bill of less than five hundred dollars!

"I don't see how we did it, Io. Gosh—not so hard getting married, it is? Expected to give a mortgage on the rest of my life, all right."

"You'd have done it, all right, if you'd had your way," she thought. And remembered the roses in Mother Blake's chill dining room.

"Let's never get in debt, Lan," she said suddenly. "And let's have things only because we want them to make us comfortable or happy—not for swank."

He said "Sure," and laughed.

They visited Lyall for a few days. Then it was Monday and Alan went back to work and Ione began the task of settling her new home. With a big, checked apron wrapping her from neck to heels and a towel around her head. Singing at the top of her voice, laughing for no reason at all, stopping to do a funny little dance now and then with a broom for her partner.

Janey and Tom had given her a dinner set, transparent as eggshell, with a border of pink buds. She washed each piece and placed it on the shelf, proud as if it were a famous painting.

They had given her linens, too, and she must put those away with little affectionate pats and croonings, and she must keep shifting the furniture to just such an angle and trying in every corner of the living room the tall, gold-shaded lamp that was a present from Marie and Pal.

She snatched her dinner from the cupboard shelf the first couple of nights and made Alan eat downtown. Getting the house ready was her job, she declared—big husky girl!—and she'd not have him underfoot, despite his protests.

But on the third night, when the soft May breeze was stirring the curtains and whispering like the breath of romance above the city streets, she put on the dress with the frills, the green 'Springtime" frock she had worn the night she waited for Alan on the terrace steps and he brought her the blue jewel for truth and they planned a home like this one she loved so. What a radiant thing, their happiness!

He came with an armful of white lilacs. Sure, they look kind of like you, Angel-eyes, all fresh and gentle." He swept her in his arms, holding her so the flowers sprayed about her face. "How about it? Hurry—"

"Love you, Lannby. Much—so much! You?"

"Best under the sun and above the moon. So beautiful and so clever—Lordy, you've made this place sit up and sing. I still don't see how we did it."

She flushed with pleasure, running her hands down his face. "And wait till you see, Lan—"

She brought a note book, all ruled off with pages headed "Rent," "Furniture," "Grocery," "Our budget, I'm going to keep books, you see. Make everything balance and have a little left over to put in the bank. Now what do you think?"

He thought he was the luckiest man alive, he declared soberly. And he kissed her all over again and asked her "How about it?" as if he'd never heard her answers before.

She made him sit on the divan and presently wheeled in Jenepher's gift, the tea wagon. There was a great round tray a-top it, and she had placed their dinner on this.

It was very gay, that first meal in their new home. He told her about his job, down to the least detail, swaggering just a bit as he talked.

And she listened adoringly and asked for everybody at the office. Had he seen Papa Weimar? And what did Eddie Benz have to say? And did Emma Shepherd want to know all about everything?

It was only as an afterthought that she inquired about Fluff Hartwick.

He was lighting a cigaret; he puffed slowly and whipped out the match before he answered.

"She's been sent over to the new branch," he said.

CHAPTER XXXI.

IT kept coming back to her all the next day. Alan holding the match in his cupped hands, the flame lighting his chiseled features, his fair, brushed-back hair.

His long, thoughtful puffs at the cigaret; smoke curling lazily as he whipped out the match. Then the quiet, almost challenging way he said, "She's been sent over to the new branch."

He had told her nothing else and Ione had asked nothing. But she felt again, whenever she thought of it, the half-frightened suspense that rushed over her. It was as if a dark thread were being run tightly into the fabric of her life.

SUMMER, lovely lady, is fading. Drooping and wilting and dreading the shadow which slowly approaches and grows and grows until eventually it will blot out all the loveliness of this dearest of Nature's daughters.

For Summer's reign is 'most over, and her sister, Autumn, is waking and making ready for her short reign.

And the shadow grows and grows and beautiful Summer is chilled and saddened a the thought that soon she must give way to a sterner and chillier queen.

SUNDAY'S horoscope is fraught with testimonies of the most propitious conditions favoring the church and clergy, philanthropy, employment, finances and bending the mind to take this fortuitous state of affairs soberly. It may be possible that an undesirable change will present itself.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of prosperity and advantageous conditions generally, but they may be confronted by an ill-advised inclination to change or travel.

A child born on this day will have a life of excellent opportunity for success and prosperity, but it should be assisted to curb a restless and erratic tendency. It may have brilliant qualities of mind and heart.

Monday, August 27

UNDER the gracious and benignant smile of Venus in trine aspect with Luna, this should be a happy and pleasant day, with many degrees and phases of gratification, despite certain small anxieties and problems in employment or in new undertakings.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a happy and prosperous year in all social, domestic, artistic and affectional matters, although there may arise small anxieties and perplexities in employment or new ventures.

A child born on this day may have many excellent graces and qualities making for popularity and good position, but it may have small anxieties in employment or may have a tendency to trivial worries or eccentricities.

The Prince of ..ales
His Story

Chester, and thus allow of the Investiture taking place.

School Life Ends

Preparations for the coming ceremony were instantly commenced at Carnarvon, for it was anticipated that thousands of visitors would arrive from all parts of the country to witness the Investiture, while arrangements were made for another link to be added to the Mayor's chain of office in honor of the creation of another Prince of Wales.

Moreover, desirous of further cementing themselves to the Crown of England, the Welsh people asked for due recognition of the Principality to be made both on the coinage of the United Kingdom and on the Royal Standard.

Shortly before Christmas the Prince of Wales returned to Buckingham Palace from Dartmouth, where he met his brother Albert, recently returned for the vacation from Osborne. During the Christmas holidays the King conceived the idea of obtaining for himself some perpetual reminder of the stay of his two eldest sons at Osborne Naval College, where he himself had attended as a boy. Mr. E. Palmer, the cadet steward at the college, was approached and was able to supply framed and signed photographs of Princes Edward and Albert attired in the uniform of cadets.

The ringing in of a new year, 1911, marked a new era in the life of the Prince of Wales. Boyhood days were to end quickly and decisively, events were to happen which at the same time broadened and restricted the Royal Prince's activities.

Prince Albert, who had completed his training at Osborne, returned to Dartmouth with his brother, Edward, and school life passed peacefully enough until, towards the end of February, an outbreak of measles occurred at the Royal Naval College. Eventually it was announced that both the Prince of Wales and Prince Albert were on the sick list. However, their recovery was speedy.

In company with their tutor, Mr. Hansell, the Royal brothers spent a short while at Jawquay to convalesce, preparatory to the transition of the Prince of Wales from a care free boy into a Royal Prince and heir to the great British Empire, and all the responsib ities this position entailed.

On March 3rd the Prince eft to don the purple robes of State. His departure from Dartmouth was not distinguished from the leave-taking of any student wh had gained popularity with his colleagues. There were the farewells to particula friends, presentations to make and receive and the gathering together of pe sonal belongings. Then the Prince traveled to London to take over his new duties of State.

During the summer of this year three important events followed closely upon each other. On June 17 Prince Edward of Wales was duly invested with the ensign of the Most Noble Order of the Garter in St. George's Chapel, Windsor, in the presence of representatives of all divisions of the order from Foreign Sovereigns to Knight Companions.

The ceremony was a solemn one, and the young Prince conducted himself with dignity and composure.

Only when his father knelt to adjust the Garter on his right leg did Edward betray emotion, but at this seemingly undignified action on his father's part the young Knight of the Garter made a slight movement of protest. He quickly recovered himself, however, but his bearing did not become normal again until he was kneeling before the King to receive the accolade.

Now came the last of the three great events in the early life of Prince Edward, for amidst the fanfare of trumpets, a wealth of color and splendor and before a background of ancient masonry the Prince of Wales was finally invested at Carnarvon Castle with this title.

The ceremony was delightfully simple compared with the grandeur of the setting. The Prince, bareheaded, knelt at his father's feet while Mr. Winston Churchill, then the home secretary, read in an impressive voice the letters patent. Meanwhile, the Prince was invested with the various articles of the insignia—the mantle of purple velvet with collar and cape of ermine, the sword, the coronet, the gold ring and the golden verge. After the ceremony an address from the people of Wales was read to the Prince. His reply, spoken in Welsh, was brief but sincere.

"The many links of the past, my Tudor descent, the great title that I bear, as well as my name, David, all bind me to Wales, and today I can safely say that I am in Then wlad fy nhadau (the old land of my fathers)."

Cheered on Presentation

Mighty cheers greeted the Prince as, like the first Prince of Wales, he was presented to the people from the two gates—King's and Queen's—and to the crowds assembled in the interior of the castle grounds.

As if to contradict Keir Hardie's vehement protest that the working classes could have little sympathy with royalty, not to mention the question of expenses in connection with the investiture ceremony, the quarrymen of North Wales presented His Royal Highness with "Gwen," a 15-month-old Welsh terrier, as an expression of their loyalty.

It was subsequently found impossible to include some emblem of Wales on the coinage and royal standard, but the King hit upon a happy solution to the problem. Henceforth, he declared, the arms of Wales should be added to the shield of their Prince.

The Prince of Wales had come through his ordeals with flying colors. But, very wisely, the King decided that his son should not be allowed to participate in any further state functions for a period, lest the strain react upon his health. Later it would be necessary for him to make his acquaintance with the Empire.

The pomp and ceremony of the past weeks had not in any way spoiled the modesty of the Prince. Indeed, he was very conscious of his youth, and on several occasions confessed that his future duties would prove difficult for him to perform. "But if," he said, "I have the confidence of the people, I am sure I can win through."

Perhaps it was expecting too much of a mere boy to understand and appreciate fully the solemn significance of all the honors he had received, but when, in March, 1912, on St. David's Day, the Prince received a deputation of Welsh bishops who had come to Buckingham Palace to present to their Prince a brief Illuminated record of the historic happenings at Carnarvon, he set all minds at rest on this point by his reply:

"Today, St. David's Day, you revive the memories of that splendid scene of which I was not too young, I think, to understand the meaning and the beauty. I shall always treasure this record of the thoughts inspired in you by a ceremony so noble and so sacred.

"I shall ever pray to God to make me worthy of being the Prince of Wales."

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Finds a Secret Compartment in the Locket

"YOU see," Lillian said, explaining her objection to my voicing my conviction as to Eleanor Lincoln's real identity, "while I would stake my right ankle that we're right, we haven't any real proof that our young neighbor of The Larches is in reality—well, for purposes of conversation, let us say 'Miss X.' I grant you that the resemblance between Miss Lincoln and the picture of 'Miss X' is startling, yet there are facial differences. The dog in the picture is what Mrs. Tiger would call the 'spittin' image of Fedor, but litter brothers are hard to distinguish from each other. Of course, the discovery of this secret miniature which the girl has guarded so carefully is almost positive proof, for who else but 'Miss X'—the other girls are much older, you know—would possess this costly and highly prized bauble. And yet, on the other hand, there is Katie's theory, which, absurd as it may appear, yet has at least the skeleton of an underpinning in the terror which Eleanor Lincoln betrays at the owl hoots that we decided came from those two Transvanian vagabonds in the shack.'

"I can't believe the girl is a thief,' I said obstinately.

"Neither can I," Lillian acquiesced promptly, "and yet we can't overlook any possible bets, nor can we afford any premature announcement of this most astonishing name. So 'an you love me, dear, let it be 'Miss X' until this whole thing is cleared up. I don't mind telling you that I pray it will be soon. If this girl really is 'Miss X,' and that ruffian in the shack knows it, which no doubt he does, it would be a brave life insurance agent who would write a policy on her."

The gravity in her eyes impressed me even more than her emphatic words.

"Of course," I said, "I shall do whatever you wish in the matter."

She flashed a quick approving smile at me.

"'Atta girl!" she commended. "The trouble is there's so darned little to do. We can't very well go to the lady and say: 'Look here, Mademoiselle, you're "Miss X" and we're going to re-s-tor-r-e you to your family.' Suppose she refused to be restored!"

"But you think she's in grave danger?"

"Than which there is no graver," Lillian retorted. "However, there's nothing we can do about it until the lady decides to confide in someone, or something else develops. Let's have a good look at this trinket. I wish you'd exercise that memory of yours over it. Some time we might need to recollect every detail of it. File away in your mental strong box, for instance, the number of jewels of each kind and then be able to draw a picture of the thing if you had to."

"Why wouldn't it be a good thing to draw a picture of it now while it is before us?" I suggested.

"It would, if you have time," she answered. "You want to get this back before the girl wakens, you know, and you can't always depend upon the length of time an opiate will affect a certain person. Hello! Look at this! Do you see anything queer about it?"

She had turned the miniature case over and was inspecting the back of the oval opposite to that in which the picture rested. I scanned it closely and then, laying it down, I rose and walking to my desk brought back a powerful magnifying glass. I was furious with myself that I could not control the trembling of my hands as I held the glass over the exquisitely jeweled surface of the case. Then, without a word, I handed the glass to Lillian, and in turn she scanned the case through it.

"I thought so," she said as she laid it down. "It's very cunningly done, but I'm used to looking out for those things. But you see, don't you, the distinct line of cleavage outlining a circular disk in the middle of this thing?"

I nodded, finding my throat suddenly dry from excitement.

"That means there's a secret compartment. Now if we only can find the spring which throws it open!"

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

Spang, Chalfant Co. Gets Big Order--Federal Trade Body to Check Transformer Company Sale.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

SPANG, CHALFANT & CO., has received an order for 45 miles of 18-inch gas line pipe to be delivered in the Southwest. This will further increase the activities of Spang's mills, which have been operating at a remarkably high rate. Other large pipe line orders are under negotiation and Spang may be expected to share in these.

A PITTSBURGH organization will be placed under scrutiny by the Federal Trade Commission when active work is resumed in September. The chief counsel of the commission is understood to have recommended that a complaint be issued against the acquisition of the stock of the Pittsburgh Transformer Company by the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company.

THE merger took place in May, 1927. At that time the Pittsburgh organization was valued at $7,000,000. Shortly after the merger an extensive improvement program was started. R. V. Bingay, president of the company before the consolidation, had developed the business from one with an annual production valued at $20,000 in 1898 to one producing $6,000,000 worth of equipment.

THE rapid growth of the bus as a means of interurban transportation is beginning to attract a degree of interest almost as great as did the interurban car 20 to 30 years ago.

Electric transportation inflamed the imagination of promotors and investors as few other innovations have done. The most extravagant dreams for the future of the industry were made. Competing lines were laid out between cities in the belief that nothing could ever supplant them. Even the doom of the steam railroads was prophesied as the interurbans reached out for passenger, express and freight traffic.

WHILE this was going on, a rich man's plaything, the automobile, was reaching perfection. It rapidly assumed an important position in transportation and ended the dreams of the interurban traction operators.

Is there another novelty waiting around the corner to stunt the growth of bus lines? No one can now be sure how much passenger and express travel the airplane will assume as increasing use reduces the cost. Just as the bus has taken a large slice of the short haul travel from the railroad and the electric car, the airplane may step into the trade of the bus.

THE factor of safety in the airplane is being steadily increased. The president of a local life insurance company recently stated that the question, "Do you intend to make an airplane flight within the the next year," may be eliminated from the medical examination blank. At present many of the life insurance companies require a slightly higher premium from men frequently using airplane travel.

ONE man who traveled from Detroit to Cleveland over the Stout Air Line said that he never felt that his life was in danger while in the plane, but that he had some close calls on the way to and from the landing fields in automobiles.

The bus lines have one advantage over the interurban lines in facing competition. They have no great investments in right of way. Their equipment can be transferred to other routes as competitive conditions change. Greater flexibility reduces the hazards in future developments.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—Favorable harvest weather in Canada and much lower Liverpool quotations than looked for led to early downturns today in wheat prices here. Many wheat traders, however, showed a decided inclination to go slow on the selling side, wheat being relatively low compared with other commodities. Opening ⅝c to 1¼c off, Chicago wheat displayed considerable power to rally. Corn, oats and provisions developed firmness with corn starting ⅛ to ⅜c down, but soon scoring upturns.

ARMSTRONG CORK HOLDS FIRM IN TRADING HERE

Moderate trading activity and a firm price tone marked the short week-end session on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Dealings were fairly well scattered through the list, with the quotations holding at or slightly above the previous closing levels.

Armstrong Cork changed hands in small lots at 55 and was firm at that figure. Earlier in the week the stock slipped back to 54½, but met support at that figure just as it met support on a previous occasion when it dropped down to 54, the latter figure being the low mark for the year. The company a short time ago obtained a favorable decision in its patent litigation involving the manufacture of embossed linoleum, but as yet the stock has failed to discount the expected improvement in earnings to result from the court decision. A somewhat better feeling prevails in the floor covering business, but competition is still keen.

The local fuels were quiet. Prices showed no change from yesterday's finals and only a few transactions were recorded in this division. Oil and gas stocks in the New York market were firm to strong under the influence of a bulge in Atlantic Refining, which reached new high ground on the movement.

Miscellaneous industrial issues were also unchanged. Pittsburgh Plate Glass sold again at 55, yesterday's closing price, and was the only glass stock in which trading took place. United Engineering was off a fraction at 43.

SCORE STOCKS SWEPT UP TO NEW HIGHS

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(AP.)—The stock market gave an impressive demonstration of strength in today's brief session. More than a score of issues were elevated to new high levels for a year or longer on gains of 1 to nearly 7 points. Trading was again in large volume, several blocks of 5,000 to 14,000 shares changing hands.

The optimistic character of weekend trade reviews, coupled with the recent improvement in the brokers' loan situation, furnished the background for the advance. Public participation, which had been restricted during the past few months by high money rates, was again an important factor in the day's proceedings.

Allied Chemical, Warner Brothers Pictures "A," Kroeger Stores, Atlantic Refining, Drug Inc., and National Cash Register all advanced 3 to 6½ points to new high records. Greene Cananea Copper also ran up 6 points and Reading, Houston Oil, Radio, General Motors and Curtiss sold 3 to 4 points higher.

Adams Express lost 11 points of yesterday's 14-point gain, but Montgomery Ward quickly made up an early decline of 5 points.

The closing was strong. Total sales approximated 1,500,000 shares.

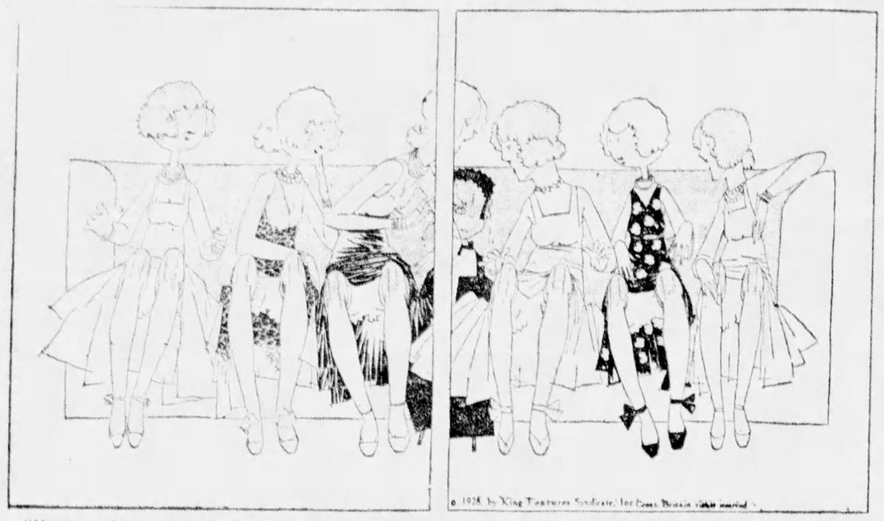
Merely Margy. An Awfully Sweet Girl -:- Story by Lloyd Mayer -:- By John Held, Jr.



"My dear, I'm on the VERGE of collAPSE, no less! I mean I've been having aCUTE hysTERics ever since the last PARty, my dear, because you know how ARab is always BOASTing heavily about his WAY with WOMen and how many CONquests he's making all the time, my dear? Well, ANYways, at the PARTY I suddenly disCOVered him surROUNDed by these SIX large FEmales who ACtually looked like NOTHing HUman, my dear, and the funny part of it WAS, they weren't paying the SLIGHTest atTENtion to him but were just igNORing the pipsqueak comPLETEly and kind of TALKing over his inert FORM just as if he weren't within 10 MILES or something, do you know what I mean? ACtually, my dear, I don't think they were aWARE of his PRESence because these SHIMmy-fluffers that were PERCHED on either SIDE of him weren't taking the SLIGHTest NOtice of him and, my dear, I can't TELL you how THRILLED I was at the SCENE, only AFterwards, my dear, I was SIMply LIVid because when I sarCAStically inQUIRED what was the secret of his sucCESS with women, the IMpudent SNUGglepuppy had the NERVE to take the remark in all SEriousness, my dear, and said it was his DOMinant personality! ACtually, my dear, I can't COPE with it! I mean I HONestly think he's the WORLD'S most conCEITed MAN—I mean I ACtually DO!"

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 4 to 15 points on relatively steady Liverpool cables and apprehensions of cold wet weather in the South, regarded as likely to promote insect activity. October sold up from 20c and March to 19.85c, or 8 to 11 points net higher but the demand was small and prices later sagged under weekend realizing. A little trade buying was reported at the opening, partly for continental account but this was regarded as offset by southern selling. Private cables said that hedge selling had been taken by covering and trade calling, together with some American buying on the Liverpool market, and that there was an improved inquiry for cloth from India.

Petting Drivers Given Hint by Motor Club Man

It is a practical and reasonable official of the Pittsburgh Motor Club who would campaign against automobile "petters." He seeks not to stop the ancient custom of "petting," but he would select for the boys and girls a safer place than an automobile traveling at a rapid speed on the public highway. Hark to the sound advice of this official regarding petting:

"There are front porches, parlors and untraveled lanes for such purposes—all more private than an open road."

Love-making and locale depend on the individual. A place 'neath a balcony window may seem to one man to be the ideal location, whereas other men have found restaurants, street cars, railroad stations and steamships far more suitable. As for the girls, well, so long as HE is near, one place is as good as another.

However, there will be no disagreement with the motor club official who insists that "petting" by "one-armed" drivers is dangerous. When a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love he may accidentally step on the gas instead of applying the brake.

The Cardinal Goes Flying

Courage, Serene, in Old Age.

Cardinal Lucon, of Rheims, eighty-six years old, returns from his flight through the sky.

Million will be interested in this picture of a venerable and courageous old man, determined, as he said, to "see how beautiful the world looks from above."

Recently he went for his first flight and this picture shows him descending from the airplane on his return to the earth.

He wore no special flying clothes, only his simple every day garments.

"If I had been younger perhaps I should not have flown," said he. "But when one is old, many things are permitted."

He meant to say that at his age the risk that he took was not so important.

"The old cathedral looked beautiful from the sky," said he. It can easily be imagined with what affectionate pleasure he looked down upon the noble old cathedral confided to his care, one of the finest in the world.

Apart from religious interest, which many will feel, Cardinal Lucon's courage in old age, and his flight are interesting to all who study human nature.

Old age is the beautiful time of life. With it come courage, reflection, reconciliation to life's troubles, mental peace and hope.

Victor Hugo said: "The death of the just man is like the end of a beautiful day."

The old age of a good man is like the late afternoon of a beautiful day. Life's toils and worries are passing or ended. The sun sets and the peaceful night is not far away.

Happy those that have well used the day of light, as this good old man has done, and can look forward without fear to whatever the night may have in store.

Dangerous Questions

Let Conviction Stand.

The Rev. Thomas J. Williams, who lives in Colorado, says that it is a mistake to describe God as "cruel, angry, desiring vengeance."

The reverend gentleman believes that the text, "I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, even visiting the sins of the fathers upon the children," and the other text, "Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord," are not to be taken literally.

Is it not a little dangerous for clergymen to raise such discussions? To start men thinking is not good for some of them.

The other question, "how can an Omnipotent Creator be anything BUT cruel when, possessing omnipotence and omniscience, He permits innocent mothers to be robbed of their children and innocent children to be strangled to death by diphtheria, or cut off by other diseases that could be ended forever at His command?"

It is as well not to mix faith and religion.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Mound Builders

WHEREVER you go—city or country, old world or new—the one thing sure to be pointed out with pride is some relic of antiquity. It may be the oldest inhabitant, or the oldest house or church, or, with the maximum of gratification, some monument or ruin of a long-past age, especially interesting if its history has changed to legend, so that it cannot be connected with the world of today.

When our forefathers settled these States they found the red men surrounded with no vestiges of great antiquity, and therefore treated them on the footing of the wild beasts of the wilderness. But after they had been driven from their hunting grounds and to a large degree exterminated, monuments began to be found of what was believed to have been a much older race than that of the Indians, and immediately a deep and respectful interest was developed in the legendary "mound builders," supposed to have inhabited this continent long before the despised red men, and to have developed here a civilization over whose mouldering ruins the savage tribes of hunters had spread like wild brushwood over a fallen forest.

The discoveries in some of the Central States and the Missippi Valley not only of elaborate burial places but of mysterious and gigantic constructions of earth, apparently having a ceremonial character, like the Great Serpent Mound of Ohio, and also the ruins of huge fortlike structures, strengthened the theory of the former existence of some, now extinct, race of men, anterior to the Indians and of a different blood.

This idea was powerfully aided by the natural instinct for mystery. The Indian seemed too recent and too untutored to be the descendant of the men who left such remarkable and imposing marks of their arts, wars and ideas. In some minds the "mound builders" loomed through the past of undiscovered America as impressively as the Homeric hosts through the historical times of Greece. The vanished race was imagined to have developed the working of metal, the art of pottery, and in other ways to have advanced far beyond the mere savagery of the tribes that the white man found trampling upon the forest-hidden memorials of their great but forgotten predecessors.

But, there have always been critics refusing to accept these conclusions, and insisting that there was no satisfactory evidence that the mound builders had been other than the ancestors of the scattered inhabitants that the white settlers encountered on their arrival. And this view receives strong support from the recent discovery at Joliet, Ill., of a mound filled with the skeletons of Indians, all of which were buried with funeral gifts of European manufacture. Other mounds explored in the same neighborhood have contained two series of burials, the deeper one accompanied by burial ornaments of native origin only and the top one showing European objects. But one particular mound is entirely of post-European age, i. e., subsequent to the coming of the white man. It contains only Indian skeletons, but by the time it was constructed the Indians had begun to substitute the white man's knives, silver crucifixes, brass pots, buttons, pins and various trinkets for the ruder stone and bone objects made by their fathers. Among these convicting objects was a "combination pocket compass and sun dial in a brass case."

In another mound, the skeletons near the top had been buried lying on their backs, heads west, feet east, indicating the influence of European religious teaching, while at the bottom the skeletons were in a crouching attitude after the aboriginal manner of the Indians.

We Are Well Off

AMERICANS sometimes realize how well off they are when they try to earn a living in foreign lands.

For example, J. B. Wilson, secretary of the American Chamber of Commerce in Manila, Philippine Islands, writes to a correspondent in this country:

"My office is constantly besieged by Americans, both men and women, seeking employment, and I must say that I can place very, very few of them. The average salesman, clerk and stenographer cannot demand a salary that would provide even a meager existence.

"As an example, I can state that I can secure chartered public accountants at a salary of $50 per month; stenographers having a knowledge of English, Spanish and native dialects are obtainable at from $30 to $50 per month.

"Living expenses in Manila are much higher than in the United States."

Cut Out the Excuses

TO "take things as they come" in a philosophical way may be just your excuse for not making more effort to control adverse conditions.

Of course, it is is useless to worry over the uncontrollable, but it is also easy to accept conditions which you might alter if you were willing to plan, work and study hard enough.

Much of the laziness in the world is accounted for by the thought that there is no use in trying to stop things that are bound to happen.

Laziness is given many classifications, such as ill luck, no pull, unwilling friends, no money, etc.

Drawbacks will vanish if you are sufficiently prepared for them.

You cannot always reach your goal by the route you first lay out.

But you are here and the goal is there, and there is more than one way to reach success in doing something useful; so keep going.

Right now you may be heading for disaster.

By allowing matters to run their own course you fail to make good.

Do something yourself to keep your eye on the bullseye. Keep shooting.

That is the only way to win.

Don't make excuses for yourself.

Influence

WE do not know why one man's acts are good,
His honor stainless and his faith a flame,
While in another dwells a cruel mood,
A joy in trampling on an ancient name.
We can not say what leads down parted ways
Those equal when they started, long ago;
(How light, how swift, the little wind sways
The sapling in the way that it should grow!)
But this is ours, by every look
To shape the soul into its fairest form,
Then will the great, majestic tree, unstirred
And fearless, face the wildest hours of storms!

Great Passages from the Bible

Parable of the Ten Virgins

(Matthew 25)

THEN shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom.

And five of them were wise, and five were foolish.

They that were foolish took their lamps, and took no oil with them:

But the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps.

While the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept.

And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him.

Then all those virgins arose, and trimmed their lamps.

And the foolish said unto the wise, Give us of your oil; for our lamps are gone out.

But the wise answered, saying, Not so; lest there be not enough for us and you: but go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves.

And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came; and they that were ready went in with him to the marriage: and the door was shut.

Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, Lord, Lord, open to us.

But he answered and said, Verily I say unto you, I know you not.

Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THERE was a guy on trial for murder, and he didn't take any interest in the case at all. He wouldn't even hire a lawyer, but the law in that state wouldn't let the poor guy be convicted so easy, so the court named a young lawyer for him.

The lawyer couldn't get any satisfaction out of the client.

"I killed him," says the bloke. "So of course I got to get hanged, ain't I? That's all there is to it."

The young lawyer come into court and had himself sworn as the only witness.

"This client is crazy," he tells the court. "We won't need no doctors to prove it. He says he killed the other fellow and wants to plead guilty and he reckons a man has to hang for murder. And besides that, he refuses to plead insanity! That's all of our case, your honor. I think I've proved he's crazy."

And the jury got right up and stopped the trial. "Not guilty, but crazy!" says the jury.

Stopped the Boasting

TWO boys were discussing sports and their own capabilities.

"How high can you jump!" asked one.

"About four feet," replied the other. "What can you do?"

"Five feet," came the prompt reply. "How about the long jump?"

"Ten feet. What can you do?"

"Eleven feet. What's your time for the hundred?"

But the other lad was a bit suspicious of his friend by now, so he replied: "Four seconds better than yours."

Bunkered!

TWO men were discussing golf courses in general and a little nine-hole course in particular. Eventually the conversation turned to a certain 18-hole course.

"I always think," said one, "that the little nine-hole course is far more difficult than the 18-hole course."

"Well, one would expect it to be so," exclaimed a friend who did not play golf.

"Why?" asked the two men, simultaneously.

"It is obviously easier to get a little ball into one of the holes when there are eighteen. It would be twice as hard when there are only nine."

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The pick of artist models now make $10 a day, although the average is around $7 a day. For many years they were paid 50 cents an hour. The job has proved an entering wedge for the stage and screen—and successful marriage.

When artists such as Harrison Fisher and Neysa McMein select a model whose beauty is spread on canvas and later on the magazine covers she is more than likely "made." Beauty show producers and cinema magnates watch for new models to glorify.

Nearly all the famous show girls who strutted across stage in magnificent costumes during the past decade began as models. The mannikins employed in the dressmaking salons are paid from $35 to $75 a week. Facial beauty is not so important. The figure and walk count.

The majority of models come from American villages. Despite extravagant stories of high-jinks in the studios the bulk of the girls are not intent upon a stage or screen career or capturing an aging Wall Street broker with a palace on the Hudson and a sclerosed liver.

They pose as models to pay their way through college or to pursue knowledge for a profession. Most of them live at art clubs or semi-philanthropic institutions where all lights are out at 11 o'clock and the front door locked and barred shortly thereafter.

Greenwich Village, of course, has its quota of high flying models who use the calling merely as a respectable veneer to hide the fast pace. They are really "call girls" who respond to a summons from dubious establishments to aid in entertaining visiting buyers.

Such as these often give the business a false status. There are several reputable agencies which supply models of every type for a small fee. While several models have married famous artists, the attitude toward them is generally as impersonal as it is toward their paints and brushes.

Broadway's oldest flapper is a devoted customer of the night clubs. She is the widow of a retired army officer, wears the latest Parisian frocks, dances gracefully, smokes cigarets—and—shades of Fanny Ward—has a baby lisp. Doubtless a gland idea!

Then there is another devoted night clubber, a chic-looking lady who seems no more than 18. A lorgnette she uses seems quite out of place. She is squired about by a meek-looking collegiate who is her grandson. Indeed, there are many Fanny Wards in this and other cities. They have merely not been publicized.

* * *

One of the youngest looking sports on Broadway is 60. He has a mass of wavy blond hair, pink cheeks and a thin slight figure. He is a former jockey and mingles only with young bloods. There are some men who outwardly show no effects of dissipation and he is about the most conspicuous of the brood.

* * *

Today at lunch two men engaged in an altercation. One tried to precipitate fisticuffs by his violence. The other was cool and collected. It is generally true that the man who gets maddest in a quarrel is in the wrong.

* * *

There is nobody so dangerous as a good natured man suddenly parting with his temper. When he becomes angry he explodes. I was with one once on a curb watching a parade. A policeman singled him out for particularly nasty abuse. The gentleman tried in every way to placate the officer and amiably obeyed his every whim. Finally the abuse grew too scorching for him and in a twinkling the officer was knocked as flat as a flitter and it took three fellow officers to pry my friend's fingers from their buddy's throat.

"In your home village," writes one signing himself Roamer, "they had to run you down on your twenty-first birthday to put shoes on you, and here you show up on Broadway wearing spats. How do you get that way?"

Jane Addams for the Nobel Peace Prize

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom is proposing its international president, Jane Addams, as a candidate for the Nobel Peace Prize.

A glance at the names of the persons who have received this prize shows that it has been given to only one woman, Baroness Bertha von Suttner, of Austria, in 1905.

Since the enfranchisement of women in many countries they have shown a remarkable influence upon public life and thought and this influence should be more fully recognized.

There are two means of preventing war, and the prevention of war is by far the most important question in the world today. Another war like the last one would be too horrible in its effects to contemplate.

One of the ways is politics. The League of Nations was one political plan and Mr. Kellogg's efforts constitute another. Sincere wishers for peace are in favor of trying any of these plans if they will work. Whether Mr. Wilson's plan or Mr. Kellogg's is adopted we do not care, so long as something is done.

But there is something necessary to this end besides political action and diplomatic arrangements.

That thing is public opinion. It is as necessary for the majority of people on earth who desire to avoid war to make public opinion effective, as it is to have the machinery for doing away with war.

Hardly any name can be mentioned among the workers for peace that is more conspicuous than that of Jane Addams, founder of Hull House and holder of degrees from many universities and colleges, vice president for many years of the American Peace Society, writer and lecturer upon peace topics in many countries. She is pre-eminently qualified to receive this prize.

She has been called "America's first citizen." She has not hesitated to risk her unique popularity by adhering immovably to her peace principles.

She would do credit to the United States, and we can think of no considerable people who would not be pleased to see her receive this honor.

Not because she is a woman especially, but because of the constructive work she has done, it would be a fitting crown to her life's work and an encouragement to all who earnestly work for peace to have her receive this prize.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

JUDGE KING DYKEMAN, of Seattle, dropped into New York and remarked that of all the women he has seen in his travels, he likes the Chicago women the best.

"I have noticed," sezze, "that they are more wholesome, less affected and less painted than the women of New York. I love to walk down Michigan boulevard and look at them. They are decidedly refreshing.

"When the women of the clerical and stenographic class come out of buildings after their day's work looking healthy and happy, the girl who is over-painted or over-rouged is the exception and stands out as being a bad example and NOT like her sisters."

At last a man who KNOWS women!

A Milwaukee man made up an alibi to explain to his wife why he came home broke, when he had really been gambling away his month's salary. Judge George A. Curran, of Chicago, is the man who knows women. He didn't punish the husband. He merely smiled and sent him home to his wife, who had found out she was deceived. "He will get his," said the judge.

A 16-year-old girl has been held a prisoner in her home in Brooklyn because a love-crazed suitor says he will kill her if she does not elope with him. He has already fired at her twice.

Now for those women who LIKE cave men—a wonderful change!

Eastern news is so sordid compared with what happens in jolly old California.

A wife out there dreamed that she wore a long black veil and that suddenly a troop of white foxes scampered across it, right before her eyes. She saw them plainly. She took that to mean that her husband was foxy and was "playing around."

The dream led to a quarrel and the husband got his divorce.

A Pittsburgh woman runs to a fortune teller every time anything happens in her home, good or bad, and she does what the seer tells her. She isn't yet divorced, I don't know what's delaying it.

Margaret Elliott and Rey G. Boyd became engaged on roller skates and they will be married on roller skates, in a roller skating rink. The guests and the preacher will be on skates. It happens where all the nice, funny, interesting news happens—in California.

That's even more modern than the companionate marriage. If the wife saw her husband facing in the opposite direction, all she would have to do would be to give him a quick shove and tell him to keep rolling.

From Baltimore we learn that a Follies beauty is engaged to a millionaire merchant. His attorney says he has no such action in mind.

If they could only synchronize men and women so that when he forgot to remember, she would remember to forget!
